TV Statement Planned

U.S. Ponders Pullout Date

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid growing indications President Nixon is preparing to offer a date for total withdrawal of all U.S. troops in exchange for release of American prisoners of war, the White House announced the chief executive will make a nationally televised and radio broadcast foreign policy statement tonight.

Presidential press secretary Ronald Ziegler said Nixon will deliver the statement from his oval office at 8:30 p.m. EST. Ziegler refused to say what specific area of foreign policy would be covered.

The announcement that the White House had sought and gained national television and radio time came as indications mounted that a significant shift was being contemplated in the U.S. stance in the Paris peace talks on Vietnam.

Ziegler declined repeatedly to expand upon his three-sentence announcement, and would not discuss the widespread reports of a Vietnam trade offer.

He told reporters, however, that "I would move with some caution as to what you say in your reports prior to the President's statement tonight."

Pressed for an interpretation of his cautioning remarks, Ziegler said "I would be careful not to move with your reports focused totally ... on the speculation that has occurred."

Ziegler also refused to say whether any new development had prompted the President's request for television time, or say when he decided to make the request.

Ambassador William Porter, chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks, flew home secretly last week and conferred last Monday with Secretary of State William P. Rogers. Ziegler said Porter has not seen the President yet. "There are no plans for him to see him at this point," Ziegler said, "but I don't want to rule out" the possibility of their meeting.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, RMass., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said Monday night he had heard that the offer of a Vietnam withdrawal date in exchange for release of POWs will come "very soon."

Administration officials declined to discuss Brooke's statement publicly but a high level State Department source said: "The senator appears to be on sound ground."

A similar forecast had come from Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania. Ziegler, when asked whether the White House had consulted recently with Brooke or Scott, said: "I don't believe so ... in recent days."

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., said in a recorded report from his Washington office this morning:

"I have every reason to believe the President will offer to the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong within the next 48 hours an agreement whereby all American troops will be withdrawn if American prisoners of war are returned. This announcement could come before the resumption of the Paris peace talks this Thursday."

Dexter Native Files For Gov.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — LeRoy Schantz, who quit a good job in Washington to fulfill his dream of running for governor of Missouri, filed his candidacy today on the Democratic ticket.

That makes him the eighth Democrat to file for the office.

In a statement he said "I have waited until January of this election year to file in order not to harass the public with inane daily pronouncements or expose them constantly through the news media with my face and name to the point of boredom and alienation.

"I propose to conduct a short, active campaign that will be candid, factual and issue-oriented and have prepared a comprehensive platform upon which I will run."

His platform is a 75-page statement of how he stands on major issues. In a recent interview he said he has watched social changes come abruptly on the East coast and believes they are heading westward.

If he is elected governor, he said, he hopes to institute changes that would dull the brunt of those changes when they reach this part of the country.

Schantz, 53, is a native of Dexter, Mo. and served as director of the state Employment Security Division from 1961-65 as the appointee of then Gov. John M. Dalton.

Although admittedly no friend of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who replaced him in the state job, Schantz said he would not run as a man opposing Hearnes' record as chief executive.

Schantz was graduated from Dexter High School and holds a bachelor's degree in agriculture and a master's degree in public administration, both from the University of Missouri, Columbia.

He is married to the former Peggy Landis of Neosho and their two daughters and son are grown.

Schantz served 12 years as recorder of deeds in Greene County and for the past six years has been employed in various government capacities in Washington.

During World War II he served as a bomber pilot and March 24, 1944 he was injured. He still bears the scars of the fiery accident.

He is a member of several veterans and political organizations and is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Schantz and his wife arrived early at the capitol so they would be prompt for his scheduled 9 a.m. filing.

Gary Shrum, 22, of Shook, suffered a broken left leg in a one-car accident one mile south of Greenville on Rt. 67, at 7:40 p.m. Monday.

The highway patrol said that Shrum was traveling north at a high rate of speed when his 1968 Mustang convertible left the road and slid sideways 171 feet and struck a tree broadside. The car then caught fire and burned.

Shrum was taken to Doctor's hospital in Poplar Bluff.

22 Indicted In Mail Fraud

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted 22 persons from coast-to-coast in what the government says was the biggest mail fraud conspiracy in history.

The indictments were returned Monday night as police in cities ranging from Fort Lauderdale to Los Angeles waited to serve warrants on those named.

Losses totaling approximately $150 million were suffered by hundreds of corporations and individuals, according to Asst. U.S. Attys. Arthur Tifford and Richard Kirachner, in what they said was a scheme involving payments of advance fees for obtaining permanent loan commitments for business purposes.

In addition to individuals, including 11 Fort Lauderdale residents, the Trans-Continental Casualty Insurance Company, Ltd., was named a defendant. The governor claims TCI is a "shell" company without assets whose address is a post office box in Nassau.

According to the government's attorneys, the defendants participated in a scheme under which individuals or companies seeking business loans were assured they could get commitments from TCI upon payment of a premium four to 10 "points" of interest to TCI in advance.

Among those indicted were Frank Allen Blosser, also known as George Blocker, of St. Louis, Mo.; and Bernard J. Greenberg, also known as "B. Green" and "Bernie Dovgrew," who formerly lived in St. Louis but is now in Tel Aviv, Israel.

Impeachment Proceedings Launched

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A New York State assemblyman launched impeachment proceedings today against Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for the handling of the September inmate rebellion at Attica Prison, where 43 persons died.

Democrat Arthur Eve of Buffalo introduced an impeachment resolution for impeachment of the Republican governor "for wrongful and illegal conduct in office and for his high crimes and misdemeanors."

Eve was a member of the committee which negotiated with the rebellious inmates. The committee members pleaded with Rockefeller to visit the prison.

A day later, with the governor's assent, armed police stormed the prison and prisoners and hostages died in the hail of police gunfire.

House Approves Tax Relief For Elderly

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri House unanimously approved today a constitutional amendment that would permit the legislature to provide tax relief for the elderly.

On a 148-0 vote, the House passed and sent to the Senate the so-called "homestead exemption" measure. If the voters approved, the legislature could then determine how much of an exemption could be granted for real property owned by the elderly.

The amendment, introduced by Rep. James Mulvaney, DJennings, also sets out that the state would have to reimburse local governments for the revenue loss in property taxes.

A similar proposal was passed by the house last year but died in the Senate.

Another constitutional change passed and sent to the Senate, 87-63, would create a backup bipartisan commission to handle redistricting of the House and Senate if the legislature fails to do he job itself.

Bipartisan commissions handle the job now, but if they fail, commissioners of the Supreme Court do the job. The court commissioners, however, are being phased out as part of judicial reform which adds judges to the appellate courts.

The remap measure was sponsored by Rep. Richard Decoster, D-Canton.

Given first round approval in the House was a bill to set up a sports authority for St. Louis County with powers to issue bonds for the construction of a sports complex like the one being built in Jackson County east of Kansas City.

It would provide facilities for professional sports teams, recreational facilities and convention facilities.

Its sponsor, Rep. Patrick J. Hickey, D-St. Ann, said there are no plans under way to attract specific professional sports franchises to the St. Louis area, but the authority might enhance the possibilities.

Meanwhile the Senate advanced to position for later passage a bill that would raise state aid from $2 to $3 a person for the handicapped who are employed in the state's 36 sheltered workshops where about 1,600 persons are employed part time.

The cost is estimated at $457,000 in the 1972-73 fiscal year, rising to $582,000 in 1974-75.

Another bill winning firstround Senate approval would open the door to possible pumping of the "heavy oil" deposits underlying parts of Western Missouri south of Kansas City.

It would permit 75 per cent of the landowners in an oil or gas field to give their approval to operation of a few wells in the field in order to get the available oil or gas out of the ground. Profits from any production would be pro-rated to all the owners.

A new bill in the Senate, introduced by Sen. John D. Schneider, D-Florissant, would establish a regional diagnostic center in St. Louis to provide services for the mentally ill and the retarded. Nine such centers are now in operation in other parts of the state.

An emergency appropriation bill carrying about $7.5 million was passed and sent to the Senate by the House Monday.

It includes $1.8 million to pay recipients of general relief and disability and the money they lost when grants were cut last October.

It also adds $93,084 to keep on distributing federal surplus foods in counties which have been forced to drop the program for lack of money and $92,000 for the Food Stamp Program in Jackson County.

Another $393,669 would pay overtime costs of employes at state mental hospitals and $50,000 would establish day care centers so mothers in the aid to dependent children program could participate in work training.

The House also put into position for later passage a bill to set up separate unit in the health division to care for the mentally retarded. It was moved ahead with the argument that mentally retarded people are neglected now by the mental health division.

The Senate moved forward to position for passage a bill to let the State Boat Commission designate areas where scuba divers could safely practice their sport. Motorboats would be warned off from diving areas by red flags.

City Mishap

Two Sikeston residents were involved in a two-car accident on E. Malone near Barkett's Big Star at 6:57 p.m. Monday.

Police said that a 1970 Ford, being driven by Armintha Virginia Haws, 60, of 215 Dye, was struck in the rear by a 1963 Buick being driven by Lawrence B. Luber, 52, of 103 Saicedo road.

Liquor Bill Fails

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Senate Criminal Jurisprudence Committee failed Monday to approve a bill barring Sunday package liquor sales in bar-restaurants with special Sunday permits to sell liquor by the drink.

The By The Drink law automatically gives licensees the right to sell package liquor also. The Legislature didn't consider that factor last year when it passed the special Sunday permit law.

Sen. William B. Waters, DLiberty, said that wasn't the Legislature's intent so he introduced the bill. It just didn't come out of committee.

But the committee recommended a bill to license and regulate private detectives. Another bill approved would let judges allow jurors to go home during trail of all but capital crime cases.

Another would make it a felony to put harmful objects such as razor blades in food or treats, the so-called "safe halloween bill."

The House Public Health Committee approved bills to:

Permit county hospitals to issue revenue bonds.

Let Ellis Fischel Cancer Hospital in Columbia admit patients who are able to pay the cot of their treatment, but retain priority for indigent patients or those who can pay only part of their hospital cot.

Increase the daily state payment toward the cost of treating tubercular patients in city or county hospitals, from the present $15 to $30.

Require that school children be immunized for Rubella or German Measles and Rubeola, the regular 10-day measles.

Regulation

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. AP - The State Water Pollution Board said today it has adopted a regulation requiring any land developer outside an incorporated area to inform the board as to what type of sewage disposal he is planning.

The notice would be required if the developer plans two or more building sites in the sub-division, the board said.

If the sewage facilities were found to be inadequate, the board could refuse to issue an operating permit for the proposed new subdivision.

Drinking Studied

MALDEN — Alcoholism in the Bootheel was chosen as the "first priority" for study during a recent meeting of the Bootheel Comprehensive Health Advisory Council Task Force Committee on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse.

Betty Hayden, Caruthersville, was selected as chairwoman for the Task Force. Hayden reported that the committee discussed the possibility of applying for a federal grant for Initiation and Development of Community Alcoholism Services in the Bootheel.

The Task Force decided that the most needed services for alcoholics and potential alcoholics in the Bootheel are as follows: education and community involvement, referrals to treatment centers, detoxification unit, rehabilitation and follow-up and education. In order to work out needed service in these five areas, Hayden said, agency and community involvement will be needed in the planning stage.

Chairwoman Hayden appointed sub-committees to find out the number of alcoholic and potential alcoholic referrals to hospitals, county health units, law enforcement agencies, vocation rehabilitation units, welfare, schools and other areas, since 1968. These figures will be used in developing the application for funding in the six-county area.

The purpose of the Task Force Committee on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse is to study the problems pertaining to alcoholism and drug abuse in the Bootheel, gather facts, and decide on alternate methods for achieving desired goals. Upon approval of the Comprehensive Health Council, the Tas Force will assist agencies or groups in the implementation of needed programs.

Members and guests attending the committee meeting were: Mrs. Betty Hayden, Chairwoman; John Brazil, State Hospital, Farmington; Dr. S. B. Beecher, Health Officer, District No. 4, Public Health Office; Jerry Wheatley, Pemiscot Welfare; Carroll Nutter, District No. 4, Public Health; Wm. (Dub) Pate, Pemiscot County Health Department; Tom Ech and Clarence Ackman, Stoddard County, Law Enforcement; Carl Davis, Dunklin County, Law Enforcement; Floyd Shaw, High School Counselor, Parma and Moody Sumitt, Executive Secretary of the Bootheel Comprehensive Health Council.

WHO CAUSED THE VIETNAM WAR?

In refuting an article by Anthony Lewis in The New York Times, William Buckley made the following six points in his column last week which form an historical basis for the Vietnam war. We would do well to remember them:

1) The Democratic Republic of Vietnam (North Vietnam) began an aggressive war against the Republic of South Vietnam, made possible by arms supplied by China and Russia.

2) South Vietnam requested aid of the signatory members of the SEATO Treaty, which promised aid in such circumstances.

3) The North Vietnamese over the course of eight years have used Laotian territory to supply that war, not- withstanding that there is a treaty signed in 1962 wherein all parties agreed to respect Laotian neutrality.

4) The United States agreed to stop the bombing of North Vietnam toward the end of Lyndon Johnson's presidency on three conditions, all three of which the North Vietnamese have defaulted on.

5) Under precepts of international law (viz, The Greco- German Mixed Arbitral Tribunal case after World War I) a nation is entitled to take any measures necessary to defend itself from foreign aggression, including measures against a neutral nation if that nation is incapable of preventing the aggressor from using its territory to mount or provision its aggression.

6) Richard Nixon never by word or deed suggested that the United States, while pulling our ground forces out of Southeast Asia, would deny to the South Vietnamese the facilities of our air force to defend themselves against a massive renewal of hostilities. The failure to bomb would have been sheer, inexplicable dereliction.

THE STANDARD AHEAD WITH RIESEL

There is a reason to be cherry — in recounting the newsbeats of your Standard columnist Victor Riesel during the recent hectic months on his beat, now easily the most crackling of running stories in decades.

It is Victor Riesel who, on Sept. 16 and Nov. 10, was the first to report taht President Nixon would confront his labor critics at their national convention in Bal Harbour, Fla. Riesel had this story weeks in advance of any correspondent, and he had it right down to the finite details — including Nixon's efforts to tempt AFL-CIO President George Meany onto the golf links.

It is Victor Riesel who had the running details of the encounter — and of the behind - the - scenes story including Meany's letter of invitation to the President after the existence of such a eltter was denied in some labor circles.

It is your Standard Columnist Victor Riesel who has analyzed more deeply, more effectively and ahead of the field, the basic reasons — domestic, political and international — for Goerge Meany's determination to smash the Nixon regime.

It is Victor Riesel who was the first to report the Pay Board's decision to use a 5.5 per cent wage guideline. This was on Sept. 22 weeks before it was officially announced by the board and picked up by other correspondents and observers.

And in the same time sequence, Riesel reported the creation of special panels such as price and pay and health, etc.

Thus it has gone as recently as the discussion on 1972 pay standards. Days before the panel chiarman, Judge Boldt officially announced there would be exemptions up to about 7 per cent, Riesel said the average run in 1972 would be 5.5 per cent to 6.5 per cent. And it was Riesel who first used the phrase, "The last in the gate."

So it has gone too on other fronts. Risel was months ahead on predicting the crippling longshoremens' strikes; the importance of the construction contracts in 1972 and their impact on the President's policies; the latest move by the government on affirmative action in the hiring of women and on the moves and strategy of the Black Caucus and its "Black Agenda."

As for politics, Riesel has been ahead on every move of labor's drive to retake the White House. All this adds up to an impressive score in the big story of the '70s.

Riesel's comments appear Monday through Friday on the editorial page of The Standard, another service to keep you informed and to provide the most informative newspaper of this area.

THEY'RE OFF AND RUNNING!

The follow item was called to our attention, which was published in a recent Money and Credit Reports:

"The quadrennial American insanity is about to begin. Please do not misunderstand. We are committed to democracy and free elections in the most profound way. But it is not lost on us that more foolish and unwise policies have had their origin in the frantic desire of some politician to be elected to the American Presidency.

"1972 is, alas, one of those years and our readers can expect to be battered with one 'bombshell' after another. As Presidential aspirants vie for attention and support you can expect the incumbent President to begin his campaign shortly ...

"Some of our Washington sources tell us that a radical tax proposal may be in the offing. It is suggested that Mr. Nixon will propose a 'value- added' tax or a transaction tax, as it is sometimes called, which is quite common in many of the European countries. For those who may not be familiar with it, this is a tax that is paid by the purchaser of components of goods right up to the finished product at every step of the manufacturing process.

"The tax would be of modest proportions -- say a 3 per cent value - added tax that would cover the costs now met by state and local property taxes around the country for education. In other words, in one deft move, Republican Richard Nixon would increase federal revenues, would lift onerous property taxes now being borne by the predominant middle class, would in essence share some revenue with the beleagured state and local governments. It would also assist those who rent because, if our information is correct, the landlord would be required to reduce rents in line with the reduction of his property taxes. Rich and poor school districts alike would get the same income per child.

"The political astuteness of the move is obvious. It will favor many diverse groups in Mr. Nixon's constituency. The longer range implications are more startling. The value-added tax is far closer to the sales tax than it is to the income tax. If proposed and enacted, it would be the first major non- graduated federal tax since World War II. One would think that this might only be the beginning of such movements.

"We are not commenting here at all on our view of the merits of such a proposal ... but we want to point out that the intrusion of a major new thrust in taxation or in other economic areas will create more uncertainty in uncertain times and you can expect more, not less, of these 'surprises' in the upcoming year."

Thousands of acres in Connecticut, New York and New Jersey have been infested by insects. Forests are threatened and the people of some regions are allegedly living "... in a state of emergency" during the summer and fall of 1971. Suspicion is growing that the ban on pesticides has been at least partly responsible for what has been happening. Commenting editorially, Barron's Weekly, reports that "In the northern part of New Jersey, which stopped the aerial spraying of DDT over half-a-decade ago, the gypsy moth for the second straight year has damaged thousands of acres of woodland ... In one state after another to ban the pesticides -- at least a dozen now have made the move -- strange things, ranging from the slaughter of honey-bees to the accidental loss of human life from high toxic substitutes, have been happening. Indeed, throughout the U. S. ... lately have come reports of frightening outbreaks of malaria. Though fragmentary and scattered, the evidence should give reasonable men pause."

It could be that jumping on the bandwagon to ban pesticides will boomerang just as did the wholesale condemnation of the use phosphates in detergents.

ILLOGICAL OBJECTIONS

Probably no technological development has been more closely supervised and policed from the standpoint of the public health than the peaceful application of atomic energy. This is particularly true of nuclear electric power generation. Nuclear-fueled power plants have not only opened the way to utilization of a new energy source but are literally the answer to a nation's prayer as an important antipollution aid.

Clean, nuclear-fueled power plants, wherever economically feasible, should be welcome by everyone. And communities that are blessed with such plants should consider themselves fortunate. Yet, strangely, there are those who favor the complete abandonment of the nuclear power plant program. They advocate the renunciation of the use of nuclear fuels as a national energy source. The reasons for such action are vague, to say the least, since they are founded on no scientific facts.

In answer to critics of nuclear energy, the head of a major power company in Minnesota-- a company that is constructing a large nuclear plant--has issued a statement in pamphlet form that graphically presents the facts about radiation. For example, a person living next door to the plant under construction by this company and drinking water from the Mississippi river directly below the plant boundary would receive about the same radioactivity exposure from the power plant in a year's time as a person receives in a jet airplane flight from Washington to San Francisco and return.

The pamphlet cites many other factors on the plant's safety, including its licensing by the Atomic Energy Commission. They add up to one irrefutable fact. Nuclear power is the answer to many of society's needs and problems, and it is here to stay.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

In his column of Gleanings in a recent issue of the mimeographed Toastmaster News, bulletin of Carthage Toastmasters Club, Carl F. Sanders quoted an unknown author:

"Other employes would do no better than Congressmen if the boss showed an interest in them only once in two years."

Now, there is food for thought.

The thought should be applied not only to Congressmen but all other elected officials. All are employes of the people, who in great numbers tend to pay no attention to whether they are doing their work properly except during the crucial periods immediately preceding elections.

This is a case where "the boss" is loafing on the job and, if he continues, may one day find himself no longer in business and no longer "the boss."——Carthage Press.

CAFE PROMOTION

Clerks of the classified advertising section of a Rouen (France) newspaper noticed an unusual number of replies to matrimonial advertisements were in the same handwriting. said the stockholm Svenks Dagbladet. Investigation revealed they were all written by a cafe proprietor, setting the place for the meeting as his cafe.

It is to be assumed that the would-be brides and grooms consumed quantities of coffee while waiting for their "Date," and when this last failed to turn up may have consoled them selves with stronger potions purchased once more from the astute cafe owner..

LOOKING AHEAD

At least one national publication has published the 1972 predictions of clairvoyants and it is interesting to note that one of the seers foresees rioting on the streets of some of our cities this year. It is to be hoped that this forecast does not come true. We, as citizens, can go a long way in preventing anarchy in our cities. Riots that have occurred in the past few years have written a disgraceful page in our history. The police and other agents of law enforcement have, as usual, borne the brunt.

Officers of the law need, in fact must have, the support of citizens if they are to prevent murder, looting and arson. For too long they have to back away as they watched crimes committed in open view on public streets. Many of the politicians who were elected by us did not stand fast in supporting the police. Many of them have turned their heads the other way. Much of the feeling of complete frustration on the part of lawmen can be attributed to the decisions of higher courts who are appointed by the officials we elect. Loopholes the higher courts have put into the laws through case decisions have served to intimidate the men behind the badge who are never quite sure if they are making a legal arrest.

All citizens can help overcome this problem and thwart the prediction of the seer. We can vote for those candidates who advocate strict law enforcement. And we can get behind LAW-AID, a program dedicated to the support of our brave officers. HLH

Inside Labor

RN Easing Into Phase Three! Tough, Abused Pay Board Chief Judge Boldt Was OSS Guerrilla Commander; Handled Mafia, Conspirators

WASHINGTON — If you read the small print in the President's message quite carefully you'll note that he's positioning himself for a sudden swift play into Phase Three. It's all there in the lines discussing what really has been his basic goal -- shocking the nation out of its "inflationary psychology." Then he adds that the controls are "working" and inflation "is on the ebb."

Meanwhile the nation still needs a Pay Board, which still needs a chairman and it's time you met him, the real white - haired, oft-whimsical, much abused, berated but never bemused, Judge George (Gid) Boldt.

The labor people have accused him of lackluster leadership, of incompetency, of running a "nut house" -- namely the Pay Board. He's winced. Many an evening he's turned to his wife Eloise, depressed and in a mood to pack and run. He hasn't -- just as he never did when commanding a secret intelligence Office of Strategic Service (OSS) unit (101) as a Lt. Colonel in the big war's bloody, behind- the- lines Burma-China theater.

To know the judge -- and I got that chance during a long evening recently, the first he's spent with a newsman -- is to pick up an instant sidekick and a genial top kick all at once. He takes his punishment quietly just as he handed it out to mobsters, Mafiosi and crooks such as Dave Beck was, and handles himself with self-humored dignity just as he did when he presided over the Case of the Seattle 7. He is, indeed, no yokel who came out of the West as his critics made him out to be.

One morning last October he found himself sitting alongside President Nixon, whom he had met casually only once, in the White House Cabinet Room. Judge Boldt said, "This makes up for all the lumps," referring to the mockery of the labor leaders.

"Don't worry," replied Mr. Nixon who has also taken some jabs from labor chief George Meany, "you're in for lots more lumps."

Indeed, Judge Boldt was, and is. He's been in the room when auto union chief Leonard Woodcock called him and the rest of the board's public members "idiots ... incompetents'. and worse. But he's let everybody talk.

This hasn't been lack of leadership by the 60- year- old semi - retired judge. The key to all of the so-called chaos in the board room is the fact that the pay panel -- which now controls the wage raises and executive salaries of all America (never forget) -- was not originally intended to have such control powers. It was to be advisory. The decision - maker was to be Don Rumsfeld's Cost of Living Council. So the Pay Board was not structured, not really manned, not staffed, not financed, not even headquartered for such power.

Then George Meany turned it around. It became all powerful. And the Western judge knew this and his own power. At one point he told a colleague, "I'll take no more rudeness. You know I know how to crack down. My record proves that."

Record, indeed. He's the judge who put the brutal Mafia boxing czar, Frankie Carbo away for 25 years. And Mickey Cohen the Los Angeles thug for 15 years. And Dave Beck, too, for tax evasion. And sat in the Southern District of New York on the first Landrum-Griffin embezzlement case. And is a friend of Federal Judge Irving Kaufman, of staunch courage, on the bench.

And Judge Boldt. now a senior Federal judge, until recently chief jurist of the Washington (State) Western District, has sat in more districts than any other Federal justice -- all the way from Guam to Puerto Rico, from theArctic circle to Miami. He rides the circuit as a senior justice.

He has written a definitive text on anti- trust action. He has handled, from the bench, the most complicated litigation, about 2,000 cases of civil anti- trust action in the electrical equipment industry in 40 districts involving 25,000 separate claims for damages running into billions of dollars.

And he does not recall being reversed by a higher court. Also, it was Secretary of State William Rogers who suggested him as a Federal judge to President Eisenhower in 1953 and to President Nixon as Pay Board chairman last year. In between, Judge Boldt twice was offered appointment to the Federal Court of Appeals in his own home district.

Twice he rejected the offer, preferring to make the law instead of reviewing it. This accounts for much of his attitude as chairman. He sits and listens as though eager to avoid some reversible error. His attitude is good will -- let them talk, let it take a little longer, let's get it all in on the record. In the early stages, he had the power to reject the will of all other members. But when the Teamsters chief Frank Fitzsimmons suggested that he vote, only to break a tie, Judge Boldt agreed.

But he's a fighter. He's getting it organized, just ass he did when he got orders to move his OSS unit from the Mandalay, Burma Arena just retaken from the Japanese back in the spring of 1945, over the ghastly Burma road for more behind- the - lines fighting in China. He got into the big war by volunteering when he was almost 40, had three children and a good income. Why?

Because George (Gid) Boldt just happens to love his country. He was drafted by President Nixon, after a phone call from Domestic Council chief John Ehrlichman. He could have rejected the lumps, the abuse, the cut in income. But he didn't. He just happens to love his country. If this makes him a "yokel," then "right on" says he, using a phrase he picked up in court from the Seattle 7. And right on it is. The Pay Board is on the move.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things that make life worth living:

New belly laughs and old love songs.

A cheering letter from home when rations are short, the top sergeant is in a bad mood, and the country you're in is far away and has a bad climate.

Helping a baby learn to walk by letting it hold on to your fingers.

The sun reflected back from a thousand-windowed skyscraper, turning it into a tower of dazzling light.

Lying on a beach in August and feeling plucked at by tentacles of foam and surf.

The taste of sardines and crackers when you're really starved.

Listening to the woes of a millionaire and discovering it is really true that money alone can't always buy happiness.

The thrill of being able to read all by yourself the story of Jack, the beanstalk and the giant.

The joy of having the prettiest girl in the First Grade stick her tongue out at you during recess, but then relenting and letting you carry her books home after school let out.

Carving her initials on a tree so deep in the woods that you are sure no one else will ever see it and guess your secret passion. When you go back years later, you find that the letters are undecipherable and the tree is only 25 feet from a main highway.

As a small boy in the long black stocking era, rubbing mud all over your kneecap so that the hole you wore in the stocking playing marbles hopefully wouldn't be seen by your mother.

Glumly learning early in life that you never get something for nothing—for example, that if a grownup gave you a glass of orange juice, it was only to get you to drink the castor oil mixed with it.

The smell of rainwet lilacs on an April morning.

Visiting your cousins in the country and sleeping on a real old-fashioned feather bed.

Feeling better after throwing up your first dinner of pig knuckles, sauerkraut and navy beans.

The glory of finding out that a dog your father brought home likes you better than anyone else in the whole family.

The importance of having everyone in the Sixth Grade know that you were the only member of the class who misspelled but a single word in the entire year. The word? Aboriginie.

(Editor's note: It looks like Boyle needs a return trip to the Sixth Grade.)

Looking at yourself in the mirror at 13, after expanding your chest with a breath so deep your face turned purple, and deciding you did have a build like Tarzan's.

Listening to your mother tell you what life was like when she was a small girl on a small farm in faraway Ireland, where Shamrocks grew like sunflowers in Kansas or corn in Iowa.

Sending away a boxtop and getting back 20 pictures of baseball players, including Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth.

Wondering what you'd buy first if you ever found the gold at the end of the rainbow.

Wondering if God ever took a nap or had a full night's sleep.

It is by such small things as these that our lives are greatly enriched.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Secret surveys show that American troops have thoroughly alienated the people they were sent to Vietnam to save.

After a cost of 55,000 American lives and $120 billion (b) out of American pockets, the withdrawing U. S. forces will leave behind a populace seething with anti-American resentment, suspicion and loathing.

The surveys were taken last year at all levels of Vietnamese society. They tell an ugly story of Vietnamese bitterness against Americans for killing innocent civilians, defoliating crops, forcing girls into prostitution, stimulating dope smuggling and reckless driving.

The dismaying results, of course, were quickly classified so the American people wouldn't find out what their sacrifices have produced. But we have seen several of the suppressed surveys. Here are a few highlights:

--RECKLESS KILLINGS--

"Ninety per cent of the interviewees," said one survey, "focused only on the bad aspects of U. S. soldiers (who) recklessly shoot their weapons from inside their compound because they suspect the VC (Viet Cong) are outside trying to fire rockets at them. Sometimes rounds hit the people's houses causing death ...."

"The people worry most," concluded another survey, "about American influence on Vietnamese society, which has caused a change in ethics and a lowering of moral standards. Robbery, bribery, corruption and dealing in the black market and in opium became more numerous with the influx of the Americans."

The questioning of 75 Vietnamese near Long Binh drew these responses: "Forty-three per cent of the respondents reported that the presence of U. S. troops in the region had ... fostered crime and corruption. Vietnamese officials, working at Long Binh base, with the help of U. S. soldiers secretly smuggled out goods worth billions of piasters. Smuggling white opium and marijuana has also become a big business.

"Seventy per cent of the interviewees said that the presence of U. S. troops has been the indirect cause of prostitution, 'cowboys' and thieves," declared another survey. "In Bien Hoa city alone, there are 200 prostitutes who cater to the Americans. As long as the prostitution remains, corruption including gambling, robbery and swindling will continue."

--GIRLS SEDUCED--

. Still another survey found: "Fifty-five per cent ... suggested that the wealth of U. S. soldiers has created many corrupt practices in Vietnamese society. Where there are U. S. soldiers, there are bar girls who are scantily dressed, act impolitely and openly display their sexual appeal."

. From a hamlet near a U. S. base: "The interviewees said ... sometimes U. S. soldiers have undressed in front of a crowd, teased girls and used their money to seduce women. Many people do not want to associate with Americans."

There are two things, at least, that the Vietnamese liked about Americans. The U. S. bases provided (1) jobs and (2) security from the Viet Cong. A suggested solution came from a survey of 62 U. S. - employed laborers, cooks and office workers.

"Most respondents recommend that unpopular activities be strictly prohibited," said the survey. "U. S. soldiers (should be) restricted and PX goods and careless spending of U. S. soldiers (should) be controlled."

Footnote: We will publish more survey results in a future column.

--UNDER THE DOME--

Representative Tom Steed, D-Okla., who handles appropriations for the White House, Treasury and Post Office, has developed an effective incentive system. "Bring in a surplus next year," he tells the bureaucrats, "and I'll be more receptive to what you ask for in your new budget." ... Senator George Aiken, R-Vt., a rock of integrity in the Senate for over 30 years, is now 79. Yet he still maintains a vigorous workday routine, thinks nothing of doing stoop labor in his garden at Putney, Vt.

Those House gadflies, H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, and Durward "Doc" Hall, R-Mo., love to carp so much that they happily accept gripes from less flamboyant House colleagues ... Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., whose sub-committee has life -or=death power over surface transportation, has named two transporation bigwigs to help run his presidential campaign. Hartke's campaign manager is Charles Roche, a lobbyist for Freight Forwarders, and the finance chairman is Eugene Garfield, president of Auto Train.

This has led Senate insiders to quip: "There are two Senators from Indiana. One is Bayh and the other is 'Bought.' "

Senator Hubert Humphrey, who is coming up fast in the Democratic presidential sweepstakes, has dashed off a quick note to ex-Nixon aide Pat Monyihan. "Don't get too rested in Academia," wrote HHH. "I am going to bring you back to Washington next January. "... Irreverent Congressmen have a new definition for a Senator: "Inflated balloon without the skin. "... Pampered Senators occupy multi-room suites and relax in taxpayer - subsidized steam baths. But the 24 hard-working capital guides are cramped into a single pantry-sized room beneath the great dome.

Fate Of Surplus Food Program In Jeopardy

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Feeding thousands of Missouri's poor and needy may well depend on current bills before the legislature calling for the state to pick up the costs of distributing surplus foods.

A measure given first round approval in the Senate must clear a spending watchdog committee because of the $310,772 price tag for the remainder of this fiscal year and $840,000 for the next. There is a similar measure in the House.

As with many other federalstate programs, the unanticipated expense was precipitated by sudden federal cutbacks once the program was installed.

If the legislation fails, many of the 104 participating counties are expected to drop the distribution of surplus foods provided by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The counties are now expected to pay 20 per cent of distribution costs, whether from county funds or through contributions of cash or volunteer larbor.

The history of the surplus commodities program prompted State Welfare Director Proctor N. Carter to tell a congressional select committee last September:

"It seems to me that it is the old tactic of a federally presented program, which is enticing and difficult for the states to resist, and then the (federal) government lowers the boom by backing out partially, or wholly, and leaving the states the choice of abandoning a good program or try to find money to finance it."

The Missouri Legislature passed a law in 1961 which would enable counties to obtain and distribute surplus commodities by paying half the administrative costs, with the state making up the other half of the expenses.

The number of counties participating during the next seven years fluctuated between 34 and 39, including St. Louis and Jackson County (Kansas City).

St. Louis shifted to a food stamp program in 1963 on a pilot basis; 10 Missouri counties have since chosen this program in lieu of surplus food distribution, and 22 more have applied.

In 1967, the U.S. Department of Agriculture advised the state that it would pay the full distribution costs of the commodities program in 331 depressed counties in the nation, including 27 in Missouri.

That left 34 counties sharing distribution costs 50-50 with the state, and 53 other counties without any kind of food program.

But late in 1969, President Nixon announced the federal administration's intention to provide food programs nationwide. USDA followd up by saying it would fully fund distribution costs for all counties without a food program as of January 1970.

By May of last year, 69 counties were participating in the fully funded commodities program and 39 others were sharing the costs with the state.

Carter termed this policy inequitable because it placed a disproportionate share of the burden of costs on taxpayers in the 39 counties.

During the current fiscal year, however, USDA slashed its allotment by $394,000, and left it up to the state Division of Welfare to parcel out the remaining $1.2 million as it saw fit, stipulating the funds be spent only for distribution costs.

The state then determined that all commodity counties would have to come up with 20 per cent of the costs.

As of mid-January, 75 counties were able to stretch their treasuries to meet those costs, and 28 others began relying on voluntary contributions.

Reputed Japanese Army Survivor Found InGuam

AGANA, Guam (AP) — A man who told officials he is a former Japanese army sergeant and has been hiding in the jungle since World War II says, "It all seems like a dream."

"I keep thinking I'll wake up soon," Shoichi Yokoi said as he met with newsmen after two fishermen spotted him and subdued him near his cave home on Monday.

Guam Gov. Carlos Gamacho said first investigation showed no reason to disbelieve Yokoi's claim to be a Japanese army survivor, but Camacho said he knew of no way to establish the claim conclusively.

With Camacho standing at his side and honorary Japanese Consul James Hintaku serving as an interpreter, Yokoi described his life since Americans landed an invasion force in 1944.

He said he and nine other soldiers fled into the jungle in 1944 and the group gradually dwindled to two other men and himself. He said he had been alone since the two others died within a short time eight years ago.

The 5-foot-4 Yokoi said he is 58. Doctors said he weighed only 90 pounds and was anemic, but was otherwise in surprisingly good physical condition.

Yokoi said he was afraid to come out of hiding because he didn't know what would happen to him. He said he subsisted on fish, coconuts and wild vegetation.

Camacho said he will return Yokoi to Japan as soon as possible.

In Japan, officials of Aichi prefecture reported that official notification of Yokoi's death was made to his father, Eijiro, on July 30, 1945, two weeks before Japan surrendered.

Eijiro died 23 years ago at the age of 68 and his mother, Tsuru, 14 years ago at 70. Shoichi had no brothers or sisters, but Osamu Yokoi, 42, who was adopted by Shoichi's mother 17 years ago, said she never believed the army's report of her son's death.

"If his mother had lived, she would be extremely happy," he added.

Bunzo Minagawa, 52, another Japanese veteran who was found on Guam 12 years ago, said he lived with Yokoi and eight others for about a month in the jungle 28 years ago but separated because of fear that a large group would be hard to hide.

"I can't believe he lived alone in the jungles," said Minagawa, who spent 16 years on the island in the company of another Japanese soldier, Tadashi Ito, 51.

Bond To Announce Decision Feb. 1

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Auditor Christopher "Kit" Bond is expected to announce his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor at a series of news conferences Tuesday, Feb. 1, in St. Louis, Kansas City and Springfield.

Bond's office said details would be announced later. Today's announcement said merely that Bond would "announce a decision on his future political plans."

But he has been acting like a candidate for months, issuing charges against the present Democratic state administration and making speeches around the state.

Already in the field for the GOP nomination is veteran Rep. R. J. "Bus" King, R-Clayton, who reportedly has lined up some solid business support around the state.

Approve Public Vote

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri House today adopted a concurrent resolution to make public the individual votes of committee members on bills on resolutions.

It will not become effective until also approved by the Senate.

The vote was 135-16 with opponents contending such a joint rule would subject committee members to the pressures of special interest groups and break down the committee system.

Rep. Thomas D. Graham, DJefferson City, called it "just another attempt to browbeat the legislature by certain media of information."

He said such a rule would prohibit committee members from voting their true convictions. "This is bad," he said. "You might as well do away with the committee system."

Minority members wanted the House to make its intentions clear by simply altering the House rules so committee member votes would become public at once.

The minority leader, Rep. John T. Russell, R-Lebanon, said he tried to get the rules committee to make that change but the three Democratic members rejected his move.

He tried the same procedure on the House floor but Speaker James E. Godfrey, D-St. Louis, ruled his move out of order.

Russell said he suspected the sponsors of the joint rule change want the resolution to die from inattention in the Senate.

But the majority leader, Rep. Richard J. Rabbitt, D-St. Louis, said the concurrent resolution should go on to the Senate and if the Senate didn't act on it in a reasonable time the House could consider some alternative action.

Rep. R. J. "Bus" King, R-Clayton, sponsor of several open hearing bills, said he was a member of the House for two terms when committee votes were public and there was no breakdown in the committee system as Graham suggested.

Welfare Probe Bares Five Double Claims

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An investigation by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare of nearly 100,000 welfare recipients in Missouri and Illinois have revealed only five cases in which persons claimed welfare in both states.

"Accordingly," said the report, which was sent to welfare officials of both states, "it does not appear that an elaborate preventive system is warranted at this time."

The investigation, conducted by the HEW regional office here, reviewed all of Missouri's 82,000 recipients and 13,000 recipients in the 13 Illinois counties along the Missouri line. It apparently followed U.S. Supreme Court action that struck down welfare residency requirements as unconstitutional.

There had been fear the action would lead to widespread abuse by recipients trying to claim assistance in bordering states.

Copies of the report were sent to Proctor N. Carter, Missouri welfare director, and Harold O. Swank, Illinois director of public aid.

Although an elaborate preventive system was not seen necessary, HEW suggested weaknesses were evident in that a recipient must report an intended move to another state in order to stop public assistance in the state he is leaving.

"Therefore, some low-cost, after-the-fact detection system between states with common borders would seem appropriate, HEW advised. 'Our audit has demonstrated the feasibility of such a system.

John C. Stanford, HEW regional audito director, said the department had not made a similar study of Kansas-Missouri, but he said HEW was aware there were a few instances where recipients attempted to claim welfare in both states.

Stephen Douglas attended the inauguration of Abraham Lincoln and is said to have held Lincoln's hat during his inaugural speech.

U.S. Naval Academy Doesn't Want To Go Co-educational

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Citing tradition and practicalities, several members of the 4,000-man brigade of mid-shipmen at the U. S. Naval Academy say they don't want their school to go coeducational.

"It's completely impractical," said Robert Hardy, 21, a senior from Columbus, Miss. "The idea of this place is to train shipboard officers, but there's nowhere women can serve in the fleet yet."

The prospect of women joining the brigade has become more than the campus joke it once was. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Rep. John McDonald, R-Mich., have nominated teen-age girls for appointment to Annapolis.

To a man, the future Navy officers interviewed at the academy said they do not think the mission of the school and its physical layout one dormitory - are geared for women.

"I'd probably be in favor of it from the standout of making this place nicer to go to, but from the standpoint of training I don't think this place is set up for women," said Lloyd Holz, a 22-year-old senior from Schulenburg, Tex.

Mike Candalor, 21, a senior from Johnsonburg, Pa., said he felt it would be difficult to integrate coeds into such nonclassroom programs as summer sea training and intramural athletics.

"Would girls box like we have to?" Candalor wondered.

"I got my nose blodied doing it, but would a girl?"

Robert Musselman said he doesn't take the nominations seriously. "It's not much more than politicans trying to get their names in the newspapers," said the 21-year-old senior from Atlanta, Ga.

He suggested that if the Navy decided women could benefit from the educational facilities at the academy, girls could be permitted to attend classes without formally joining the brigade.

Girl Vowels Need Liberating

NEW YORK (AP) -- Five little girls need liberation from 21 bullying boys, according to a group of women from Suffolk County, Long Island.

The girls represent the voeels of the alphabet. The boys are the consonants.. And all 26 are caricatured in a program called Alpha One used in schools throughout the country to teach first graders their ABCs.

To the Suffolk women, the program is blatantly sexist, because the girl- vowels are shown as weak, weeping creatures who must ask the chauvinist consonants for protection and support.

"It presents a very poor image for little girls," said Mrs. Lois Rodriguez, a kindergarten teacher — she does not use the program — and a spokeswoman for Suffolk Women's Liberation.

The multimedia package, including books, filmstrips and posters, gives each letter a sex and a personality. The letter-people's interactions with one another in Alpha Land -- how Miss A gets along with Mr. T, for instance -- are meant to help children learn word formation from real - life situations.

What the feminist mothers are protesting are such too- real situations as the one where Mr. C and Mr. K determine which vowels belong to them. Says Mrs. Rodriguez, "The whole idea of girls belonging to boys is what's awful. The firls are never consulted."

Swimmer Over The Hill At 19

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Debbie Meyer says she's over the hill as a competitive swimmer at the age of 19.

She announced her retirement Monday after a disappointing season in 1971 that saw younger girls come along and break the last of her national and world swimming records.

Debbie (they called her 'Peanut' because she liked peanut butter) hit her prime at 16, winning three Gold Medals in the 1968 Olympic Games at Mexico City.

Mentally, she had been aiming at the 1972 Games at Munich, but physically "my arms didn't jibe."

"Dad always told me when swimming got to be a daily chore and no fun to hang up my suit," said Debbie, who swam competitively ever since she was 12 years old under Coach Sherman Chavoor of Arden Hills Swim and Tennis Club in suburban Sacramento.

"Even back in September when I talked about giving it up, I was trying to convince myself not to. Two weeks ago I finally decided to quit," Deqbie said.

"And I'm loving every minute of it. Now I get to stay up late and watch the late movies and sleep in. It's great!"

Now a sophomore at nearby American River College, Debbie plans to continue her education at either UCLA or Stanford.

She said she had pondered retirement "for a long time.

"I especially thought about it around Christmas time when I was doing so bad. I had my mind psyched to continue, but my arms didn't jibe," Debbie said.

Davis-Hetlinger

EMPORIA, Kan. — In a ceremony conducted the afternoon of Dec. 26, in the First Presbyterian church, Miss Johanna Marie Hetlinger was married to Larry Eugene Davis.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Maurice McLean, 1912 Briarcliff Lane, and the late Duane F. Hetlinger. Davis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Davis of Sikeston, Mo.

The double ring service was read by Stafford Studer, the violinist was Miss Arlan Smith and the organist was Kenneth Gerhardt.

The bride, given in marriage by her stepfather, Maurice McLean, wore a dress of candlelight organza over peau de soie and a floor length veil held with a Juliet cap of lace and pink velvet ribbon. Her dress was fashioned with an Empire waistline and trimmed with lace appliques and pink velvet ribbon. She carried a red rose in a nosegay of pink roses and ferns.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Miss Ellen McLean, and the bridesmaid was Miss Mary Browne.

The best man was Thomas Davis, Seattle, Wash., brother of the groom. John Hetlinger, brother of the bride, was the groomsman. Ushers were Rick Davis, James McLean and Peter Hetlinger.

The reception after the ceremony was held in the home of the bride's parents.

The bride is a graduate of Roosevelt high school and the groom is a 1965 graduate of Sikeston high school. He recently completed a tour of duty in the army. Both are students at Minnesota State college. After a wedding trip to Missouri, they will live in Marshall, Minn., where the college is located.

Legs Reappear In Fashion

By ALISON LERRICK
AP Fashion Writer

PARIS (AP) — The summer fashion season began in French salons Monday, and one thing seemed clear: women will soon be showing legs again.

At Louis Feraud, who showed this morning, the mini is back, from a demure three inches above the knee to a more provocative three inches below the hips. With it go sheer stockings and very high toeless black or red pumps, to make more of a good thing.

Feraud is thinking in black and white for summer. As a contrast his models wore red lipstick, red hair and even red eyeliner to match wide-sashes wrapped around the waist.

As usual, this designer is torn between two, and in his opinion, usually contradictory images of women. so, his collection was split almost entirely into black and white, with some pleasing attempts to reconciling the two extremes.

White is for little schoolgirl dresses, with frills, pleats, trucks and white lace anywhere from hem to elbow. His sweater dresses even trailed white wool roses. Black is for satin and shantung and slinky skirts that outline and underline the derriere.

But the prettiest clothes mixed both, as in a black kimono over black satin pants. When rolled up, the cuffs and sleeves showed white.

Venet, who also showed Monday, is as ever a tailor's tailor. As usual, his coats are immaculately cut, welted and billowing out at a back. Long jackets in bright blue, green, orange or yellow or over straight white pants, just the thing for a millionaire's wife to go marketing in, with saddle shoes, of course.

But Venet slipped up on feathers, his favorite motif for prints. Naked Indian chiefs are hardly the thing for the cocktail hour. And even in organza, what woman wants to go to dinner in a flurry of birds of prey disguised as peacocks?

The Bank of England, located on London's narrow Threadneedle Street is popularly known as "The Old Lady of Threadneedle Street."

POLLY'S POINTERS

Make Nice Lap Robes Out of Old Scarves

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Amy could sew together some of her many scarves to make one piece of fabric, line it and sew up a side seam, put in an elastic waistband and have one of the popular patchwork hostess skirts.—MRS. M. U.

DEAR GIRLS—Such a skirt would have more body and perhaps hang better if a thin cotton batting was put between the sewed-together scarves and the lining and then a simple quilting pattern, like diamonds or squares, done on the sewing machine.—POLLY

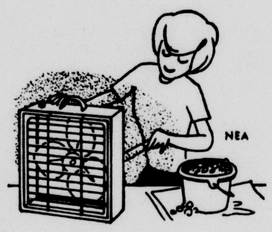
DEAR POLLY—Amy could group her scarves by their washability, colors, etc., and make quilt tops out of them. Mine were not quite the same size so I crazy-quilted strips between them so they came out even in width and length. I also added a border all around.—GRANNY

DEAR POLLY—Do tell Amy who has all those silk, synthetic and wool scarves to sew four of them to make a square and face with a lining of any medium-weight material, even old sheets, to make lap robes for wheelchair patients in one of our veterans' hospitals. If she does not sew, there are many women's church groups who would be glad to have such scarves to use.—MRS. B. N.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Decoupage seems to be the new decorating trick and sometimes gilt, gold and silver are seen pasted on entire walls. I would like to know how this is done or if it might be gold or silver wallpaper.—MRS. C. H.

DEAR POLLY—After struggling to help my husband carry a mattress up the stairs I decided that one of my biggest Pet Peeves is that the mattress manufacturers do not put handles on the ends of mattresses. The ones on the sides are not much help at any time.—MRS. A. W.



DEAR POLLY—I use a light wire egg beater to flatten drop cookies. This is easy and also adds a decorative look to the cookies.

Before putting my electric fan away for the winter I wrapped a piece of terry cloth around a six-inch stick, dipped this in hot, soapy water and cleaned the dust off all the hard-to-get to openings. A clean cloth was used to rinse these places with clear water.—CLARA

DEAR POLLY—A rubber band wrapped around the handle of a cooking utensil or spoon will keep it from slipping into the pan while preparing food or even when it is being served.—MARGARET

DEAR POLLY—I operate a newsstand-type of paper route and have several self-service machines at various locations. My Pet Peeve is that a few people (fortunately not the majority) take two or more papers for the price of one. They think they are cheating the big newspaper that may make millions a year but they are not. They are cheating me, the lowly carrier, with pennies for profits. If I lose one Sunday paper I have to sell four to make up for it.—A. T. G.

Greeting Cards Upsetting Her

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a traveling man and an inveterate newspaper reader. Your comumn is a must for me and I read it all over the country. Sometimes I read it twice a day—when I'm on the road. This is what I am writing about. Can you solve a riddle for me?

Recently I was in Detroit and caught you in the Free Press. The column that morning was about a young guy who couldn't urinate unless he was alone. He was very worried because he was about to be inducted into the Army and he knew he'd never have any privacy there. That same morning I flew to Boston from Detroit and picked up the Herald-Traveler at the hotel. I read the same column I had read in the Detroit paper, but the language was different. It didn't say anything about the guy's inability to urinate. It said he was afraid to go to the bathroom.

Do you write different answers for certain papers? Please explain.— A Road Rat

Dear Road: The very same column is sent to all client papers. Each editor handles it as he sees fit. It might be that nobody in Boston urinates. They only go to the bathroom.

Dear Ann Landers: I am so burned up right now that I have to let off steam or I'll explode. It's my dizzy cousin who lives in Detroit. She is constantly sending me greeting cards. She writes in every bit of white space from top to bottom, then she writes up and down the sides of the card, over the printed message and on the back. It's a mess. As if that's not enough she underlines everything so I won't miss the point. It's maddening. Does she think I'm am idiot? At the end of a sentence that's supposed to be funny, she scribbles "HA HA. GET IT?"

Should I tell this donkey that I don't enjoy her cards, that they make me mad and to please stop sendint them? —Leave It To Hallmark

Dear Leave It: You told me —that's enough. I see no point in hurting your cousin's feelings. When her cards come, give them a quick glance than throw them out. HA HA, GET IT?

Dear Ann Landers: My boyfriend is 24 and so am I. We have been engaged three times in the last four years. When the time comes to set the date, Ike gets sick or something. This morning we were to mail the invitations and Ike said he wasn't sure he wanted to get married and needed "more time."

The last disappointment upset me terribly. I still see him and am willing to give him another chance, but certain members of my family are bugging me. They say Ike is stringing me along, that he is selfish and insincere. I'm on the verge of breaking off relations with both my parents and my sisters. They should be giving me hope and encouragement instead of undermining my confidence in Ike. Do you agree? Please answer, Ann, I want them to see it. --- Needing Confidence

Dear Needing: I agree -- you should definitely break off relations. But not with your family. It's Ike who ought to be ditched. Should you manage to bludgeon him into marriage one of these days, you'll regret it. The guy is bonkers.

Bears Meet NCAA College Champs

SPRINGFIELD — One of the biggest non-conference outings of the year opens semester break action for the Southwest Missouri State College basketball Bears Wednesday night.

Defending NCAA College Division national champion Evansville University will meet SMS in McDonald Arena with tipoff time set for 7:30 p.m.

Wednesday's tilt will be the first start for the Bears in 11 days since SMS won a 74-70 league contest from Central Missouri State College. The win raised the Bears' record to 4-6 for the year.

Evansville, meanwhile, has split decisions in its last two outings, a 94-81 loss to St. Louis University and a 97-81 victory over Philadelphia Textile, for an 11-5 campaign standard.

Coach Arad McCutchan's Aces have rolled past most opponents, grabbing the title in their own Holiday Tournament, and running up scores above the century mark on four difference occasions.

"It is an extremely fast and an extremely explosive team," Coach Bill Thomas emphasizes. "The Aces use a devastating defense and a fast break that is averaging 86 points per game. Our scouting report says Evansville is an outstanding club."

Although Evansville lost three starters from the squad that captured the Aces' fifth NCAA crown, McCutchan did return Don Buse, the Most Valuable Player in three different tournament ballotings including the NCAA finals, and Rick Coffey, who gained a spot on the NCAA -All-Tournemant team.

Buse, who is termed by Thomas as "possibly the best defensive guard in the nation," has been averaging better than 12 points per game. The 6-4 senior guard is third in scoring.

Coffey, a 6-3 forward, tops the pointmaking for the Aces with a 17.6 average, and is second in rebounding with a 6.0 average. The third Evansville player in double figures for the year is 6-9 senior center Steve Welmer, averaging 17.4 points, and 10.4 rebounds.

Joining these three on the court will probably be Greg Martin, a 6-1 forward, and Curt John, a 6-2 guard. Both are averaging better than eight points per game for the Aces.

"We will have to play our very best game of the year to have a chance to win," believes Thomas. "It will probably all boil down to whether we can take the defensive pressure. Evansville gets a lot of shots from the steal and fast break. We are going to have to be able to move the ball down, and get our offense going without Evansville stealing."

Getting the assignment in the backcourt for the Bears will be 5-10 guard Bob Curl and 6-2 guard Zack Townsend. Townsend leads the scoring with a 22.6 average, and Curl is averaging 13.0.

Completing the SMS lineup will be 6-4 sophomore Rick Briscoe and 6-3 freshman Daryel Garrison at forwards, with 6-8 sophomore William Doolittle starting at center. Garrison is also averaging 13 points per game.

Wednesday night will be the sixth meeting between SMS and Evansville. The Aces hold a 3-2 edge in the series.

Wednesday night will be the sixth meeting between SMS and Evansville. The Aces hold a 3-2 edge in the series.

"This is a very big game for us and quite a challenge," said Thomas. "I'm happy with our progress. We are doing a good job in practice, and I think we are ready for the game."

ASU Speedy

JONESBORO, Ark. -- Thomas Hill sped to his second victory of the indoor season and the Arkansas State Indians set three school records in the Southern USTFF meet in Jackson, Miss., last Saturday.

Hill took an easy victory in the 60-yard high hurdles in 7.1, after running a pair of 7.2's in the prelims and semifinals. He didn't encounter the same success the night before at Philadelphia, Pa., where he ran 7.2 in the semifinals, before finishing last in the finals.

"Tom has a slight hip injury that is keeping him on top of the hurdle too long," said ASU mentor Thad Talley. "In addition to that, I think he's pressing a little and just needs some time and a few more races.

"Don't forget, he was completely out of competition for a year, and it's hard to start right back on top where he left off."

Talley was plaeased with several aspects of the indoor meet at Jackson, particularly the three school records by the Indians.

Half-miler John Scurto blazed to a 2:13.6 recording in the 1000 yard run for a second place finish. His record setting time topped the old school standard of 2:19.2 by Billy Bell in 1970.

Scurto also ran a 1:54.2 anchor leg on the record setting two mile relay team, which finished second to Louisiana State with a 7:44.5. The old school standard for the event was 7:56.6 established in 1971.

Scurto, Willie Davidson and Jim Bailey were members of the group last year which set the mark and they also had a hand in topping it at Jackson. Bailey ran an impressive 1:55 third leg while Davidson turned in a good 1:56.2 to open the race.

Junior Tommy Vaughan recorded a 1:59 as the fourth member of the record setting two mile relay team.

Long Beach Eyes Crack At UCLA

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — It's hard to take basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian of Long Beach State seriously when he says he isn't thinking about UCLA. It gets harder when, in the next breath, he starts talking about what his third-ranked 49ers will have to do if they find themselves on the same court with the mighty Bruins.

"Of course, you can't beat UCLA if you can't get through their press and stop their fast break," the coach says. "If you can do those things, then they're down to earth.

"They run so well that if you just relax for a second they've got a bucket. I hope we get to play them."

UCLA isn't on Long Beach State's schedule. "I don't blame them," Tarkanian says. But in Long Beach 30 miles south of the Bruins in Westwood, it's hard to ignore John Wooden's giants of college basketball, who again this year may stand between the 49ers and a chance at the national title.

It's also hard to ignore the Bruins nationally. In nationwide balloting in this week's college basketball poll, they received all 43 first-place votes and 860 points. They've won all 14 games played this season.

So has Marquette, ranked second. Long Beach State was rated third, followed by Louisville, North Carolina, Ohio State, Southern California, Virginia, Penn and Florida State.

South Carolina headed the second ten. Then came Southwestern Louisiana, Brigham Young, Marshall, Hawaii, Minnesota, Princeton, Maryland, Northern Illinois and Missouri.

Tarkanian's unheralded team nearly beat UCLA in the NCAA regionals last year, but the Bruins squaked by 57-55—and then rolled to their fifth straight NCAA championship.

This year, however, the 49ers are anything but unheralded. They have won 15 of 16 games and rank third in the nation. They also have their fans hoping that this may be the year they end UCLA's reign.

The Top Twenty, with firstplace votes in parentheses, won-lost records through games of Saturday, Jan. 22 and total points on the basis of 20 for first, 18 for second, 16, 14, 12, 10, 9, 8, etc.

Barber Edges Archer

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Portly, aging Miller Barber had just finished a marathon, 21hole playoff and he was sighing in weariness with perspiration glistening on his bald head and streaming down beside the aviators' glasses he always wears.

"I was just trying to get in— just trying to finish," the 40year-old veteran said Monday after out-lasting George Archer in pro golf's longest playoff in more than a quarter of a century.

Barber, who had to shoot a fourth-round 65 Sunday to gain a spot in the playoff, rolled in an 18-foot birdie putt from below the cup on the 93rd hole to take down the title and the $30,000 first prize in the Dean Martin-Tucson Open golf tournament.

"We were both about to fall down," Barber said in a brief interview before catching a plane home to Sherman, Tex. to see his new son.

Archer, a 32-year-old former Masters champion and one of the hottest players now on the tour, picked up $17,100 for second place. He left immediately after finishing and was not available for comment.

It was the second extra round in three weeks for the 6-foot-6 Archer, who beat Dave Hill and Tommy Aaron in a nationally televised 18 hole affair for the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open crown in the first tournament on the long pro schedule.

And it was the longest playoff since Lloyd Mangrum went 36 holes to beat Byron Nelson and Vic Ghezzi for the 1946 United States Open title at Canterbury in Cleveland. That one was set up differently.

After they tied at the end of 18, another 18 was scheduled.

No Light Shed On Barred Skiers

TOKYO (AP) — Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said today the Olympic movement "is an ideal spirit to combat commercialism and politics," but he shed no light on which skiers might be kept out of next week's Olympics on grounds of commercialism.

"We are living in a materialistic world," Brundage told some 100 newsmen at a Japan Press Club luncheon.

Asked specifically about some skiers, including top Austrian competitors, Brundage said, "I will reserve my comment until after the eligibility committee meeting. I still don't know which athlete is competing in what event."

The eligibility committee meets Wednesday in Tokyo.

Aside from questions of barring skiers because of past commercialism, Brundage added that athletes who bring advertisements into the Winter Olympics opening Feb. 3 in Sapporo, northern Japan, will be ineligible.

Marquette Coach Foregoes Berating After Close Call

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Al McGuire, Marquette's usually fiery basketball coach, did an about-face, but his Warriors didn't.

The unbeaten Warriors ran their season's winning streak to 15 Monday night, defeating Notre Dame 71-62, while McGuire, who has been berating his team after virtually every victory, was surprisingly calm after the unexpectedly close call against the 3-9 Fighting Irish.

Instead, he reserved most of his comments for Notre Dame. "Thet should be proud," he said, referring to the losers. "They played well. Digger Phelps has done an excellent job. Every time we went to the zone, he had his team hold the ball, which was a smart move."

Phelps also was proud of his team. "I felt we did a great job," he said, "But we got a little tired at the end and missed some key shots. But we kept our poise and confidence the whole game. Remember, we played the No. 2 team in the country and they didn't run us off the court. Before the season ends we're going to knock off some of those biggies."

Jim Chones paced Marquette with 24 points. Gary Novak of Notre Dame scored 25.

Meanwhile, fourth-ranked Louisville walloped North Texas State 95-72 for its 13th consecutive victory following a season-opening one-point loss to Florida.

The Cardinals, now 3-0 in the Missouri Valley Conference, held North Texas scoreless for nearly the first four minutes while racing to a 9-0 lead. Louisville's Jim Price led all scorers with 23 points, while teammate Ron Thomas scored 17 points and grabbed 22 rebounds.

Brigham Young, the No. 13 team, routed Athletes in Action 109-59 as 6-foot-11 Kresimir Cosic scored 17 points, snared 18 rebounds and blocked 11 shots.

Northern Illinois, rated 19th, registered its 10th consecutive victory and 11th in 12 games, handing Central Michigan its worst setback in eight years 9364. Sophomore Jim Bradley led Northern Illinois with 25 points.

Eau Claire of Wisconsin, ranked the nation's top small college team, suffered its first loss in 14 games, bowing to North Dakota 73-70. Craig Skarperud's 22 points led North Dakota, now 12-4. Mike Ratliff had 25 points and Frank Schade 24 for Eau Claire.

Jim Andrews poured in 34 points as Kentucky overpowered Vanderbilt 106-80 in a rough game. Kentucky's Larry Stemper was ejected from the game after decking the Commodores' Jan Van Breda Kolff.

Elsewhere, it was: Georgia 79, Auburn 72; Louisiana State 84, Florida 73; Kansas 74, Iowa State 71; Oklahoma 82, Oklahoma State 68; Duquesne 65, Xavier 57; Fordham 81, Army 71; Eastern Kentucky 96, Western Kentucky 78; Jacksonville 107, Stetson 82; New Mexico 96, Texas-Arlington 68; West Texas State 84, Long Island 69; Arizona State 96, Los Angeles State 89; Washington 86, Oregon State 73; Wyoming 76, Creighton 65; California 89, Santa Clara 79; Washington State 73, Oregon 56.

KU,OU Keep Pace In Big Eight Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Defending champion Kansas and title hopeful Oklahoma kept pace in the Big Eight Conference basketball race Monday night, although they took different routes to victory.

Kansas came from five points behind in the final five minutes, outscored Iowa State, 12-4, down the stretch and made off with a 74-71 decision over the Cyclones at Lawrence, Kan. Oklahoma's Sooners nudged to a 45-34 halftime lead over Oklahoma State, then turned the Bedlam Series renewal into a rout in the second half on the way to an 82-68 homecourt blitzing of the Cowboys.

Both winners now share second in the Big Eight with 3-1 records behind Nebraska's 3-0 mark. Kansas gets a crack at the Cornhuskers Saturday, but first Nebraska visits Oklahoma State Wednesday night with a good chance to go 4-0.

OSU is alone in the league cellar at -5 and now has lost 15 of 17 starts. Iowa State slipped to 1-4 and 8-9. The Jayhawks are 6-9 for all games and Oklahoma 7-8.

Kansas was sluggish in the first half, trailing by as much as 11 points and facing a 39-30 deficit at intermission. Bud Stallworth, who led all scorers with 24 points, helped the Jays catch up at 47 - all with 11 minutes left.

Tom Kivisto finally gave Kansas the lead for good with a jump shot and a pair of free throws to snap a 67-67 deadlock. The Cyclones got back within one before Kivisto whipped a court-long pass to Neal Mask, whose layup with 11 seconds left clinched it.

Senior forward Andrew Petes had 22 points and 8 rebounds for OU while Bobby Jack and Ted Evans added 13 apiece. Jerry Clack's 18 paced the Pokes.

Vicksburg Siege: Two-Sided Loss

GUY NORTHROP
Commercial Appeal

If you ever visit the Civil War battlefield at Vicksburg, Miss., don't stop with the monuments and markers. Look at the old courthouse, now a museum, sitting high on the bluff like a sentinel. Drive up and down the brick streets where some of the same buildings of 1863 are still standing and in use.

The battlefield is placid today. Where Rebels and Yankees dug trenches and met in hand-to- hand combat there is apark, softened by time, by more than a century, and barely scarred.

There are curving roads sloping down the edges of ravines where blood was poured by bucketfuls, an imposing equestrian statue of U.S. Grant near where he and a 12- year-old son lived in a headquarters spot in rude tents, the neatly tended Shirley House which is the last existing structure dating to the battle, and on the bluff, 200 feet above the Mississippi River, an obelisk which would have to be modest only beside the Washington Monument.

I won't dwell with the history of the 47-day siege of Vicksburg. Memphis author Shelby Foote has told the whole story graphically in 106 pages of his second volume of "The Civil War: A Narrative," and even those pages don't tell it all. You have to read about what led to the siege, and what followed it, to put it in context.

Grant's canals on the Louisiana bank, Porter's naval sneak past Confederate batteries, Grierson's cavalry escapade, Sherman's diversions, the battles of the Big Black River and Champion Hill, and then what Foote calls "The Beleaguered City"— all fit together in a jigsaw puzzle. Even the earlier naval battle on the Mississippi at Memphis is part of the Vicksburg story.

I traveled to Vicksburg the day after Thanksgiving, in company with my 75-year- old father- in- law, Elton Horne, of Gulfport, Miss. Two of his uncles fought at Vicksburg, and a brother lived there for many years. He used to take my wife over the park when she was a child.

But together, I new to the place and he an old hand, we marveled at the landscape. The road takes you first through Yankee positions where long trenches were dug and cannons were pulled by pieces up impossible inclines. You come to the bluff over the river, looking down on what was then the Mississippi but is now called the "dead river," since the channel changed, and you wonder how any boats ever got past. Circling back, you ride over the high ground held by the Confederates defending Vicksburg in a wide arc — and again you wonder how a foe could have attacked without losing.

You leave the green park and go back to the books where you find the details. The Rebels were well entrenched with a series of dirt forts. Grant assaulted in force twice in May of 1863 and fell back, deciding on a siege. He won the war of attrition, but in the end the Federal casualties and the Confederate losses were almost equal. And from all I can read so far, neither side hated the other — they simply shot at each other in daylight and shouted messages across the lines at night. It was a grim, dirty game of carnage carried out at higher levels, leaving thousands dead, mutilated and wounded or sick.

Vicksburg was starved out and feebly supplied by the Confederate generals who could not see what was happening. On July 3, 1863, Rebel Gen. John Pemberton sat down with Grant to discuss surrender terms and on July 4 they came to agreement. All the captured Johnny Rebs were paroled. A funny kind of war.

But it's a strange land. Elton Horne and I talked about the archeology of the region as we drove over from Jackson. Deep ravines and high hills of blown dirt — centuries old and packed hard, perfect for Union trenches and tunnels in 1863, now hewn by highway engineers and pockmarked by youngsters who like to leave their initials carved for posterity.

We crossed the Vicksburg bridge, beside a new one going up for the Interstate Highway System, into Louisiana and on into the flat, black delta to Talluhah, and back over the levee and into the battlefield after lunch in a restaurant where black waitresses are dressed as Aunt Jemima types.

There is cotton, there is tradition, there is heritage, there is beauty. Nothing much has changed.

Blacksmith, 84, Misses Horses

NAPOLEON, Ohio (AP) — Matt Becker is a wiry 84-year-old man who knows he is one of a dying breed.

He's a blacksmith, a trade he has followed 66 years and still works at six-days a week.

He came to the United States from Germany when he was 18, after learning the blacksmith trade from his grandfather.

"I didn't like it at first because I couldn't speak English," Becker said of the trade in his new country. But he stuck with it because "it's the only thing I know."

He walks one mile each morning from his home to the rustic old shop, considered a local landmark. "I want to work as long as I'm able," he said.

The thing he misses most from his work in a modern world is horses. "I haven't shod a horse in 30 years," he said. "Shoeing horses started slacking off around 1940. Besides, I couldn't handle one at my age anyway."

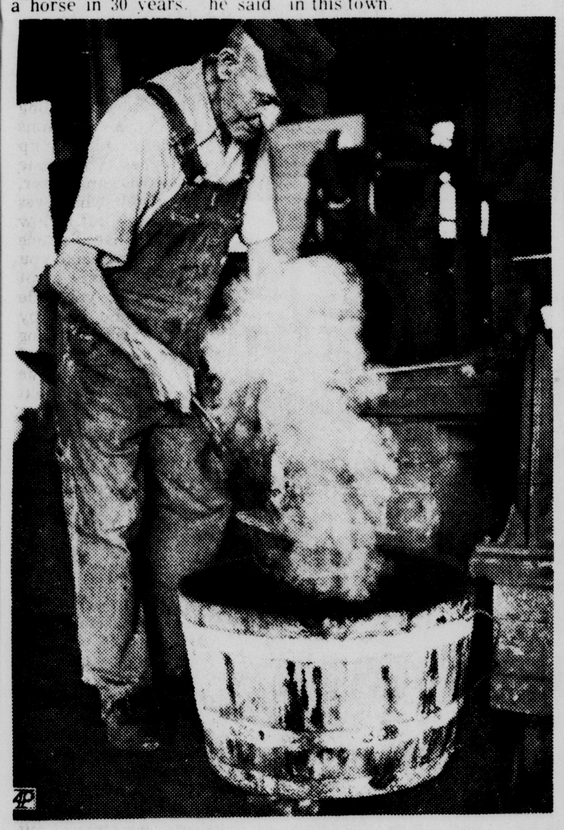
Although he still uses many of the old tools of his trade, most of his work now is spent sharpening blades for mowers and repairing parts for tractors and farm implements.

He said many farmers in the area come to him "because I can fix things for them that might take weeks to have repaired at a factory."

Motorists passing his shop often hear the clang of hammer on metal as he shapes a piece of metal on his anvil.

He started his shop here in 1920 as a partnership but soon bought out his partner because there was not enough work for two men.

"When I'm gone," he noted, "there won't be a blacksmith in this town."



OLD TRADE — Matt Becker, 84, works in his blacksmith shop at Napoleon, Ohio, where he has been a blacksmith since 1920. Becker learned the trade 66 years ago in his native Germany.

SPLIT in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference was formalized with the ouster of Rev. Jesse Jackson, left, leader of Operation Breadbasket in Chicago, by the Atlanta headquarters of Rev. Ralph Abernathy, right, successor to Martin Luther King as SCLC president. Jackson is establishing a new Chicago-based economic and political organization called PUSH (People United to Save Humanity).

On Closer Inspection, The Misguided Missiles

An incredibly inaccurate defense

by U.S. Rep.
JOHN SCHMITZ
of California

A curious event took place in the Senate of the United States in early October. A Senator actually took it upon himself to attempt to increase the effectiveness of our strategic forces rather than calling for further unilateral disarmament.

Senator James Buckley made a valiant effort to amend the Military Procurement Act with measures which would have given our strategic missile forces a "damage limiting" capability by increasing their accuracy to the point of being able to effectively neutralize Soviet nuclear missiles in their hardened silos.

Although the U.S. has for years had the technological know-how necessary to increase the accuracy of both our land and sea based missiles so that they would be able to destroy Soviet ICBM's on Soviet soil, we decided to make our missile forces less accurate than they might be. If this seems incredible to you, it seems no less incredible to me and to a growing number of other members of Congress.

The theory behind purposely lowering the effectiveness of the forces on which our survival depends goes like this: If we were able to knock out the Soviet missile force they might be tempted to strike us first to prevent his from happening. Thus we should not deploy weapons capable of damaging the Soviet rocket force by instead target less effective missiles on Soviet urban and industrial targets which are easy to destroy. We will hold the Soviet people hostage while at the same time hoping that the Soviets will follow our example and not develop weapons capable of destroying our missile force. This would supposedly result in a condition known as "Mututal Assured Destruction," abbreviated as "MAD" and obviously tending in that direction.

If you ever wondered why the Department of Defense seemed more concerned with dead Russians than live Americans, this is the reason. This strategy of attacking civilians only was not conceived and set up as defense policy by military men but by former Secretary of Defense McNamara's intellectuals. If you suspect that the Soviets might not be unthinking enough to emulate our example, which assures that if war breaks out there will be total unlimited disaster for both sides, you would be correct.

The Soviet strategic missile force is being sepecifically designed to destroy, not our cities and industry, but our strategic weapons which could inflict retaliatory damage on them. As Senator Bucklev correctly pointed out in arguing for his amendments, "It is now generally conceded that within another two or three years, if present trends are allowed to continue, the Soviet Union will have achieved the capacity to destroy virtually all our land-based strategic forces in a preemptive strike."

This is one of several reasons it is absolutely necessary that we improve the accuracy of our missile forces with all speed. Suppose the Soviet Union strikes with their SS-9 — a huge ICBM capable of carrying one 25-megaton warhead or three 5-megaton warheads (in comparison, our Minuteman carries only one 1/2 megaton warhead or three 200 kiloton warheads) — in combination with their submarine launched ballistic missiles, thereby destroying not only our Minuteman force but also our strategic bomber force before it can get off the ground. It is true that we would still have our Polaris - Poseidon submarines with which to retaliate. But the soviets would have over 900 SS-11 and SS-13 ICBM's (similar to our Minuteman) still unlaunched. The President, if still alive, would then have the choice only of launching our Polaris- Poseidon missiles at Soviet cities, thus bringing unimaginable devastation on the U.S., or surrendering. He would not be able to order the submarines to destroy the Soviet SS-11 and SS-13 counter-city reserve forces before they are launched because we have deliberately made our missiles inaccurate enough so that they will not be able to critically damage the Soviet hardened missile force. He would not have much of a choice.

By failing to make our missiles hard-silo accurate — a relatively inexpensive modification — in the hopes of not provoking a Soviet attack, we are actually encouaging just such an attack by increasing the prospects for the enemy's success. Not only is this "MAD" posture strategically indefensible, but it is also profoundly immoral to purposely lock oneself into a position where the only possible strategy is to annihilaete millions of noncombatants.

What's The Law

College Not Liable

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

While some coeds pursue learning, Edna pursued everything but learning. She answered more questions on the telephone than in class, believed in every / man for herself, used drugs, rarely spent a night in her dormitory, spent more time in strange beds than a politician, associated with known criminals and refused to return home at the end of the school semester.

The result? Edna's parents sued the college for permitting their daughter to fall into errant ways.

"When parents send their children away to college," they complained in court, "they have a right to rely upon the college to keep a concerned and watchful eye on them. In Edna's case, the university officials must have been wearing blinders."

"We operate a fountain of learning," was the defense, "and if kids choose not to drink from it, that's not our problem. We give degrees, but not the third degree." IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the college liable for Edna's going bad?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a college has no duty to regulate the private lives of its students, to control the students' coming and goings and to improve their associations. A university is an institution / for the advancement of knowledge and learning, noted the judge, and is neither a nursery school, a boarding school nor a prison. Persons who meet the required qualifications and who abide by the university rules and regulations are permitted to attend and must be presumed to have sufficient maturity to conduct their own personal affairs. Based upon a 1971 Ohio Court of Common Pleas Decision)

Things Some People Said In 1971...And Wish They Hadn't

By ART BUCHWALD
in the
Commercial Appeal

WASHINGTON — The year 1971 produced its share of losers. But worse than losing is being responsible for someone else's losing. Aren't you glad you weren't the person who said to:

Gen. Yahya Khan, president of Pakistan: "My advice, Mr. President, is to arrest Sheik Mujibur and teach the East Pakistanis a lesson."

To a Time magazine editor: "Hey, they're looking for an editor at Look and will pay twice the salary."

To Chiang Kai-shek: "Generalissimo, this will make you laugh. Somebody started a wild rumor that Nixon is going to visit Peking. Hahahahahaha."

To Premier Sato of Japan: "I have it on highest authority that President Nixon will reject a surcharge on foreign imports."

To Senator Fred Harris: "You announce for president, and we'll get you the money."

To Larry O'Brien, chairman of the Democratic Party: "Don't worry about the deficit. Congress will pass a bill which will give us 20 million dollars."

To Jan Stenerud, place kicker for the Kansas City Chiefs: "OK, Jan, get this easy kick from the 32-yard line, and we wrap up the ball game."

To Judge Mildred Lillie of Los Angeles: "President Nixon is going to nominate you to the Supreme Court, and since you're a woman there is no way the American Bar Association can prevent it."

To a housewife: "We're having a special on Bon Vivant vichyssoise today, Mrs. Smith."

To Senator Edmund Muskie: "Why don't you level with them and tell them you don't think it's possible a black could become vice president of the United States?"

To Capt. Aubrey Daniel III, prosecutor in the Lieutenant Calley case: "I'm sorry, captain. The President is too busy to talk to you. Why don't you write him a letter?"

To George Meany: "Forget it, George. The President wouldn't dare show up at an AFL-CIO convention in Miami."

To Aristotle Onassis: "The marriage contract is in a safe place where no one can find it."

To the president of the Rand Corp.: "Are you kidding? Daniel Ellsberg is the most discreet person who ever worked here."

To Secretary of Defense Laird: "CBS wants to do a documentary on the Pentagon, and I OKed it because I think it will help our image."

To Mayor John Lindsay: "How can the Knapp Commission investigation of the New York police hurt you?"

To Ambassador Goerge Bush in the United Nations: "Don't worry, Mr. Ambassador. You can tell the President we have the votes to keep Taiwan in the United Nations."

To the American people: "There will never be wage-and-price controls as long as I'm President of the United States."

Love and war live side by side in the history of man. A world of sad and often cruel contrasts. We ask "Why?" Why poverty in a land of plenty? Why alienation when we are all born to the same family of man? The aching chasm between the real and the ideal everywhere provokes the question . . .

WHY?

In a world looking for answers maybe God is the place to start.
God is hope. God is now.

TV Statement Planned

U.S. Ponders Pullout Date

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid growing indications President Nixon is preparing to offer a date for total withdrawal of all U.S. troops in exchange for release of American prisoners of war, the White House announced the chief executive will make a nationally televised and radio broadcast foreign policy statement tonight.

Presidential press secretary Ronald Ziegler said Nixon will deliver the statement from his oval office at 8:30 p.m. EST. Ziegler refused to say what specific area of foreign policy would be covered.

The announcement that the White House had sought and gained national television and radio time came as indications mounted that a significant shift was being contemplated in the U.S. stance in the Paris peace talks on Vietnam.

Ziegler declined repeatedly to expand upon his three-sentence announcement, and would not discuss the widespread reports of a Vietnam trade offer.

He told reporters, however, that "I would move with some caution as to what you say in your reports prior to the President's statement tonight."

Pressed for an interpretation of his cautioning remarks, Ziegler said "I would be careful not to move with your reports focused totally ... on the speculation that has occurred."

Ziegler also refused to say whether any new development had prompted the President's request for television time, or say when he decided to make the request.

Ambassador William Porter, chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks, flew home secretly last week and conferred last Monday with Secretary of State William P. Rogers. Ziegler said Porter has not seen the President yet. "There are no plans for him to see him at this point," Ziegler said, "but I don't want to rule out" the possibility of their meeting.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, RMass., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said Monday night he had heard that the offer of a Vietnam withdrawal date in exchange for release of POWs will come "very soon."

Administration officials declined to discuss Brooke's statement publicly but a high level State Department source said: "The senator appears to be on sound ground."

A similar forecast had come from Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania. Ziegler, when asked whether the White House had consulted recently with Brooke or Scott, said: "I don't believe so ... in recent days."

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., said in a recorded report from his Washington office this morning:

"I have every reason to believe the President will offer to the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong within the next 48 hours an agreement whereby all American troops will be withdrawn if American prisoners of war are returned. This announcement could come before the resumption of the Paris peace talks this Thursday."

Dexter Native Files For Gov.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — LeRoy Schantz, who quit a good job in Washington to fulfill his dream of running for governor of Missouri, filed his candidacy today on the Democratic ticket.

That makes him the eighth Democrat to file for the office.

In a statement he said "I have waited until January of this election year to file in order not to harass the public with inane daily pronouncements or expose them constantly through the news media with my face and name to the point of boredom and alienation.

"I propose to conduct a short, active campaign that will be candid, factual and issue-oriented and have prepared a comprehensive platform upon which I will run."

His platform is a 75-page statement of how he stands on major issues. In a recent interview he said he has watched social changes come abruptly on the East coast and believes they are heading westward.

If he is elected governor, he said, he hopes to institute changes that would dull the brunt of those changes when they reach this part of the country.

Schantz, 53, is a native of Dexter, Mo. and served as director of the state Employment Security Division from 1961-65 as the appointee of then Gov. John M. Dalton.

Although admittedly no friend of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who replaced him in the state job, Schantz said he would not run as a man opposing Hearnes' record as chief executive.

Schantz was graduated from Dexter High School and holds a bachelor's degree in agriculture and a master's degree in public administration, both from the University of Missouri, Columbia.

He is married to the former Peggy Landis of Neosho and their two daughters and son are grown.

Schantz served 12 years as recorder of deeds in Greene County and for the past six years has been employed in various government capacities in Washington.

During World War II he served as a bomber pilot and March 24, 1944 he was injured. He still bears the scars of the fiery accident.

He is a member of several veterans and political organizations and is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Schantz and his wife arrived early at the capitol so they would be prompt for his scheduled 9 a.m. filing.

Leg Broken In Mishap

Gary Shrum, 22, of Shook, suffered a broken left leg in a one-car accident one mile south of Greenville on Rt. 67, at 7:40 p.m. Monday.

The highway patrol said that Shrum was traveling north at a high rate of speed when his 1968 Mustang convertible left the road and slid sideways 171 feet and struck a tree broadside. The car then caught fire and burned.

Shrum was taken to Doctor's hospital in Poplar Bluff.

22 Indicted In Mail Fraud

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted 22 persons from coast-to-coast in what the government says was the biggest mail fraud conspiracy in history.

The indictments were returned Monday night as police in cities ranging from Fort Lauderdale to Los Angeles waited to serve warrants on those named.

Losses totaling approximately $150 million were suffered by hundreds of corporations and individuals, according to Asst. U.S. Attys. Arthur Tifford and Richard Kirachner, in what they said was a scheme involving payments of advance fees for obtaining permanent loan commitments for business purposes.

In addition to individuals, including 11 Fort Lauderdale residents, the Trans-Continental Casualty Insurance Company, Ltd., was named a defendant. The governor claims TCI is a "shell" company without assets whose address is a post office box in Nassau.

According to the government's attorneys, the defendants participated in a scheme under which individuals or companies seeking business loans were assured they could get commitments from TCI upon payment of a premium four to 10 "points" of interest to TCI in advance.

Among those indicted were Frank Allen Blosser, also known as George Blocker, of St. Louis, Mo.; and Bernard J. Greenberg, also known as "B. Green" and "Bernie Dovgrew," who formerly lived in St. Louis but is now in Tel Aviv, Israel.

Impeachment Proceedings Launched

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A New York State assemblyman launched impeachment proceedings today against Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for the handling of the September inmate rebellion at Attica Prison, where 43 persons died.

Democrat Arthur Eve of Buffalo introduced an impeachment resolution for impeachment of the Republican governor "for wrongful and illegal conduct in office and for his high crimes and misdemeanors."

Eve was a member of the committee which negotiated with the rebellious inmates. The committee members pleaded with Rockefeller to visit the prison.

A day later, with the governor's assent, armed police stormed the prison and prisoners and hostages died in the hail of police gunfire.

House Approves Tax Relief For Elderly

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri House unanimously approved today a constitutional amendment that would permit the legislature to provide tax relief for the elderly.

On a 148-0 vote, the House passed and sent to the Senate the so-called "homestead exemption" measure. If the voters approved, the legislature could then determine how much of an exemption could be granted for real property owned by the elderly.

The amendment, introduced by Rep. James Mulvaney, DJennings, also sets out that the state would have to reimburse local governments for the revenue loss in property taxes.

A similar proposal was passed by the house last year but died in the Senate.

Another constitutional change passed and sent to the Senate, 87-63, would create a backup bipartisan commission to handle redistricting of the House and Senate if the legislature fails to do he job itself.

Bipartisan commissions handle the job now, but if they fail, commissioners of the Supreme Court do the job. The court commissioners, however, are being phased out as part of judicial reform which adds judges to the appellate courts.

The remap measure was sponsored by Rep. Richard Decoster, D-Canton.

Given first round approval in the House was a bill to set up a sports authority for St. Louis County with powers to issue bonds for the construction of a sports complex like the one being built in Jackson County east of Kansas City.

It would provide facilities for professional sports teams, recreational facilities and convention facilities.

Its sponsor, Rep. Patrick J. Hickey, D-St. Ann, said there are no plans under way to attract specific professional sports franchises to the St. Louis area, but the authority might enhance the possibilities.

Meanwhile the Senate advanced to position for later passage a bill that would raise state aid from $2 to $3 a person for the handicapped who are employed in the state's 36 sheltered workshops where about 1,600 persons are employed part time.

The cost is estimated at $457,000 in the 1972-73 fiscal year, rising to $582,000 in 1974-75.

Another bill winning firstround Senate approval would open the door to possible pumping of the "heavy oil" deposits underlying parts of Western Missouri south of Kansas City.

It would permit 75 per cent of the landowners in an oil or gas field to give their approval to operation of a few wells in the field in order to get the available oil or gas out of the ground. Profits from any production would be pro-rated to all the owners.

A new bill in the Senate, introduced by Sen. John D. Schneider, D-Florissant, would establish a regional diagnostic center in St. Louis to provide services for the mentally ill and the retarded. Nine such centers are now in operation in other parts of the state.

An emergency appropriation bill carrying about $7.5 million was passed and sent to the Senate by the House Monday.

It includes $1.8 million to pay recipients of general relief and disability and the money they lost when grants were cut last October.

It also adds $93,084 to keep on distributing federal surplus foods in counties which have been forced to drop the program for lack of money and $92,000 for the Food Stamp Program in Jackson County.

Another $393,669 would pay overtime costs of employes at state mental hospitals and $50,000 would establish day care centers so mothers in the aid to dependent children program could participate in work training.

The House also put into position for later passage a bill to set up separate unit in the health division to care for the mentally retarded. It was moved ahead with the argument that mentally retarded people are neglected now by the mental health division.

The Senate moved forward to position for passage a bill to let the State Boat Commission designate areas where scuba divers could safely practice their sport. Motorboats would be warned off from diving areas by red flags.

Liquor Bill Fails

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Senate Criminal Jurisprudence Committee failed Monday to approve a bill barring Sunday package liquor sales in bar-restaurants with special Sunday permits to sell liquor by the drink.

The By The Drink law automatically gives licensees the right to sell package liquor also. The Legislature didn't consider that factor last year when it passed the special Sunday permit law.

Sen. William B. Waters, DLiberty, said that wasn't the Legislature's intent so he introduced the bill. It just didn't come out of committee.

But the committee recommended a bill to license and regulate private detectives. Another bill approved would let judges allow jurors to go home during trail of all but capital crime cases.

Another would make it a felony to put harmful objects such as razor blades in food or treats, the so-called "safe halloween bill."

The House Public Health Committee approved bills to:

Permit county hospitals to issue revenue bonds.

Let Ellis Fischel Cancer Hospital in Columbia admit patients who are able to pay the cot of their treatment, but retain priority for indigent patients or those who can pay only part of their hospital cot.

Increase the daily state payment toward the cost of treating tubercular patients in city or county hospitals, from the present $15 to $30.

Require that school children be immunized for Rubella or German Measles and Rubeola, the regular 10-day measles.

Regulation

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. AP - The State Water Pollution Board said today it has adopted a regulation requiring any land developer outside an incorporated area to inform the board as to what type of sewage disposal he is planning.

The notice would be required if the developer plans two or more building sites in the sub-division, the board said.

If the sewage facilities were found to be inadequate, the board could refuse to issue an operating permit for the proposed new subdivision.

City Mishap

Two Sikeston residents were involved in a two-car accident on E. Malone near Barkett's Big Star at 6:57 p.m. Monday.

Police said that a 1970 Ford, being driven by Armintha Virginia Haws, 60, of 215 Dye, was struck in the rear by a 1963 Buick being driven by Lawrence B. Luber, 52, of 103 Saicedo road.

Drinking Studied

MALDEN — Alcoholism in the Bootheel was chosen as the "first priority" for study during a recent meeting of the Bootheel Comprehensive Health Advisory Council Task Force Committee on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse.

Betty Hayden, Caruthersville, was selected as chairwoman for the Task Force. Hayden reported that the committee discussed the possibility of applying for a federal grant for Initiation and Development of Community Alcoholism Services in the Bootheel.

The Task Force decided that the most needed services for alcoholics and potential alcoholics in the Bootheel are as follows: education and community involvement, referrals to treatment centers, detoxification unit, rehabilitation and follow-up and education. In order to work out needed service in these five areas, Hayden said, agency and community involvement will be needed in the planning stage.

Chairwoman Hayden appointed sub-committees to find out the number of alcoholic and potential alcoholic referrals to hospitals, county health units, law enforcement agencies, vocation rehabilitation units, welfare, schools and other areas, since 1968. These figures will be used in developing the application for funding in the six-county area.

The purpose of the Task Force Committee on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse is to study the problems pertaining to alcoholism and drug abuse in the Bootheel, gather facts, and decide on alternate methods for achieving desired goals. Upon approval of the Comprehensive Health Council, the Tas Force will assist agencies or groups in the implementation of needed programs.

Members and guests attending the committee meeting were: Mrs. Betty Hayden, Chairwoman; John Brazil, State Hospital, Farmington; Dr. S. B. Beecher, Health Officer, District No. 4, Public Health Office; Jerry Whealtey, Pemiscot Welfare; Carroll Nutter, District No. 4, Public Health; Wm. (Dub) Pate, Pemiscot County Health Department; Tom Ech and Clarence Ackman, Stoddard County, Law Enforcement; Carl Davis, Dunklin County, Law Enforcement; Floyd Shaw, High School Counselor, Parma and Moody Sumitt, Executive Secretary of the Bootheel Comprehensive Health Council.

WHO CAUSED THE VIETNAM WAR?

In refuting an article by Anthony Lewis in The New York Times, William Buckley made the following six points in his column last week which form an historical basis for the Vietnam war. We would do well to remember them:

1) The Democratic Republic of Vietnam (North Vietnam) began an aggressive war against the Republic of South Vietnam, made possible by arms supplied by China and Russia.

2) South Vietnam requested aid of the signatory members of the SEATO Treaty, which promised aid in such circumstances.

3) The North Vietnamese over the course of eight years have used Laotian territory to supply that war, not- withstanding that there is a treaty signed in 1962 wherein all parties agreed to respect Laotian neutrality.

4) The United States agreed to stop the bombing of North Vietnam toward the end of Lyndon Johnson's presidency on three conditions, all three of which the North Vietnamese have defaulted on.

5) Under precepts of international law (viz, The Greco- German Mixed Arbitral Tribunal case after World War I) a nation is entitled to take any measures necessary to defend itself from foreign aggression, including measures against a neutral nation if that nation is incapable of preventing the aggressor from using its territory to mount or provision its aggression.

6) Richard Nixon never by word or deed suggested that the United States, while pulling our ground forces out of Southeast Asia, would deny to the South Vietnamese the facilities of our air force to defend themselves against a massive renewal of hostilities. The failure to bomb would have been sheer, inexplicable dereliction.

THE STANDARD AHEAD WITH RIESEL

There is a reason to be cherry — in recounting the newsbeats of your Standard columnist Victor Riesel during the recent hectic months on his beat, now easily the most crackling of running stories in decades.

It is Victor Riesel who, on Sept. 16 and Nov. 10, was the first to report taht President Nixon would confront his labor critics at their national convention in Bal Harbour, Fla. Riesel had this story weeks in advance of any correspondent, and he had it right down to the finite details — including Nixon's efforts to tempt AFL-CIO President George Meany onto the golf links.

It is Victor Riesel who had the running details of the encounter — and of the behind - the - scenes story including Meany's letter of invitation to the President after the existence of such a eltter was denied in some labor circles.

It is your Standard Columnist Victor Riesel who has analyzed more deeply, more effectively and ahead of the field, the basic reasons — domestic, political and international — for Goerge Meany's determination to smash the Nixon regime.

It is Victor Riesel who was the first to report the Pay Board's decision to use a 5.5 per cent wage guideline. This was on Sept. 22 weeks before it was officially announced by the board and picked up by other correspondents and observers.

And in the same time sequence, Riesel reported the creation of special panels such as price and pay and health, etc.

Thus it has gone as recently as the discussion on 1972 pay standards. Days before the panel chiarman, Judge Boldt officially announced there would be exemptions up to about 7 per cent, Riesel said the average run in 1972 would be 5.5 per cent to 6.5 per cent. And it was Riesel who first used the phrase, "The last in the gate."

So it has gone too on other fronts. Risel was months ahead on predicting the crippling longshoremens' strikes; the importance of the construction contracts in 1972 and their impact on the President's policies; the latest move by the government on affirmative action in the hiring of women and on the moves and strategy of the Black Caucus and its "Black Agenda."

As for politics, Riesel has been ahead on every move of labor's drive to retake the White House. All this adds up to an impressive score in the big story of the '70s.

Riesel's comments appear Monday through Friday on the editorial page of The Standard, another service to keep you informed and to provide the most informative newspaper of this area.

THEY'RE OFF AND RUNNING!

The follow item was called to our attention, which was published in a recent Money and Credit Reports:

"The quadrennial American insanity is about to begin. Please do not misunderstand. We are committed to democracy and free elections in the most profound way. But it is not lost on us that more foolish and unwise policies have had their origin in the frantic desire of some politician to be elected to the American Presidency.

"1972 is, alas, one of those years and our readers can expect to be battered with one 'bombshell' after another. As Presidential aspirants vie for attention and support you can expect the incumbent President to begin his campaign shortly ...

"Some of our Washington sources tell us that a radical tax proposal may be in the offing. It is suggested that Mr. Nixon will propose a 'value- added' tax or a transaction tax, as it is sometimes called, which is quite common in many of the European countries. For those who may not be familiar with it, this is a tax that is paid by the purchaser of components of goods right up to the finished product at every step of the manufacturing process.

"The tax would be of modest proportions -- say a 3 per cent value - added tax that would cover the costs now met by state and local property taxes around the country for education. In other words, in one deft move, Republican Richard Nixon would increase federal revenues, would lift onerous property taxes now being borne by the predominant middle class, would in essence share some revenue with the beleagured state and local governments. It would also assist those who rent because, if our information is correct, the landlord would be required to reduce rents in line with the reduction of his property taxes. Rich and poor school districts alike would get the same income per child.

"The political astuteness of the move is obvious. It will favor many diverse groups in Mr. Nixon's constituency. The longer range implications are more startling. The value-added tax is far closer to the sales tax than it is to the income tax. If proposed and enacted, it would be the first major non- graduated federal tax since World War II. One would think that this might only be the beginning of such movements.

"We are not commenting here at all on our view of the merits of such a proposal ... but we want to point out that the intrusion of a major new thrust in taxation or in other economic areas will create more uncertainty in uncertain times and you can expect more, not less, of these 'surprises' in the upcoming year."

Thousands of acres in Connecticut, New York and New Jersey have been infested by insects. Forests are threatened and the people of some regions are allegedly living "... in a state of emergency" during the summer and fall of 1971. Suspicion is growing that the ban on pesticides has been at least partly responsible for what has been happening. Commenting editorially, Barron's Weekly, reports that "In the northern part of New Jersey, which stopped the aerial spraying of DDT over half-a-decade ago, the gypsy moth for the second straight year has damaged thousands of acres of woodland ... In one state after another to ban the pesticides -- at least a dozen now have made the move -- strange things, ranging from the slaughter of honey-bees to the accidental loss of human life from high toxic substitutes, have been happening. Indeed, throughout the U. S. ... lately have come reports of frightening outbreaks of malaria. Though fragmentary and scattered, the evidence should give reasonable men pause."

It could be that jumping on the bandwagon to ban pesticides will boomerang just as did the wholesale condemnation of the use phosphates in detergents.

ILLOGICAL OBJECTIONS

Probably no technological development has been more closely supervised and policed from the standpoint of the public health than the peaceful application of atomic energy. This is particularly true of nuclear electric power generation. Nuclear-fueled power plants have not only opened the way to utilization of a new energy source but are literally the answer to a nation's prayer as an important antipollution aid.

Clean, nuclear-fueled power plants, wherever economically feasible, should be welcome by everyone. And communities that are blessed with such plants should consider themselves fortunate. Yet, strangely, there are those who favor the complete abandonment of the nuclear power plant program. They advocate the renunciation of the use of nuclear fuels as a national energy source. The reasons for such action are vague, to say the least, since they are founded on no scientific facts.

In answer to critics of nuclear energy, the head of a major power company in Minnesota-- a company that is constructing a large nuclear plant--has issued a statement in pamphlet form that graphically presents the facts about radiation. For example, a person living next door to the plant under construction by this company and drinking water from the Mississippi river directly below the plant boundary would receive about the same radioactivity exposure from the power plant in a year's time as a person receives in a jet airplane flight from Washington to San Francisco and return.

The pamphlet cites many other factors on the plant's safety, including its licensing by the Atomic Energy Commission. They add up to one irrefutable fact. Nuclear power is the answer to many of society's needs and problems, and it is here to stay.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

In his column of Gleanings in a recent issue of the mimeographed Toastmaster News, bulletin of Carthage Toastmasters Club, Carl F. Sanders quoted an unknown author:

"Other employes would do no better than Congressmen if the boss showed an interest in them only once in two years."

Now, there is food for thought.

The thought should be applied not only to Congressmen but all other elected officials. All are employes of the people, who in great numbers tend to pay no attention to whether they are doing their work properly except during the crucial periods immediately preceding elections.

This is a case where "the boss" is loafing on the job and, if he continues, may one day find himself no longer in business and no longer "the boss."——Carthage Press.

CAFE PROMOTION

Clerks of the classified advertising section of a Rouen (France) newspaper noticed an unusual number of replies to matrimonial advertisements were in the same handwriting, said the stockholm Svenks Dagbladet. Investigation revealed they were all written by a cafe proprietor, setting the place for the meeting as his cafe.

It is to be assumed that the would-be brides and grooms consumed quantities of coffee while waiting for their "Date," and when this last failed to turn up may have consoled them selves with stronger potions purchased once more from the astute cafe owner..

LOOKING AHEAD

At least one national publication has published the 1972 predictions of clairvoyants and it is interesting to note that one of the seers foresees rioting on the streets of some of our cities this year. It is to be hoped that this forecast does not come true. We, as citizens, can go a long way in preventing anarchy in our cities. Riots that have occurred in the past few years have written a disgraceful page in our history. The police and other agents of law enforcement have, as usual, borne the brunt.

Officers of the law need, in fact must have, the support of citizens if they are to prevent murder, looting and arson. For too long they have to back away as they watched crimes committed in open view on public streets. Many of the politicians who were elected by us did not stand fast in supporting the police. Many of them have turned their heads the other way. Much of the feeling of complete frustration on the part of lawmen can be attributed to the decisions of higher courts who are appointed by the officials we elect. Loopholes the higher courts have put into the laws through case decisions have served to intimidate the men behind the badge who are never quite sure if they are making a legal arrest.

All citizens can help overcome this problem and thwart the prediction of the seer. We can vote for those candidates who advocate strict law enforcement. And we can get behind LAW-AID, a program dedicated to the support of our brave officers. HLH

RN Easing Into Phase Three! Tough, Abused Pay Board Chief Judge Boldt Was OSS Guerrilla Commander; Handled Mafia, Conspirators

WASHINGTON — If you read the small print in the President's message quite carefully you'll note that he's positioning himself for a sudden swift play into Phase Three. It's all there in the lines discussing what really has been his basic goal -- shocking the nation out of its "inflationary psychology." Then he adds that the controls are "working" and inflation "is on the ebb."

Meanwhile the nation still needs a Pay Board, which still needs a chairman and it's time you met him, the real white - haired, oft-whimsical, much abused, berated but never bemused, Judge George (Gid) Boldt.

The labor people have accused him of lackluster leadership, of incompetency, of running a "nut house" -- namely the Pay Board. He's winced. Many an evening he's turned to his wife Eloise, depressed and in a mood to pack and run. He hasn't -- just as he never did when commanding a secret intelligence Office of Strategic Service (OSS) unit (101) as a Lt. Colonel in the big war's bloody, behind- the- lines Burma-China theater.

To know the judge -- and I got that chance during a long evening recently, the first he's spent with a newsman -- is to pick up an instant sidekick and a genial top kick all at once. He takes his punishment quietly just as he handed it out to mobsters, Mafiosi and crooks such as Dave Beck was, and handles himself with self-humored dignity just as he did when he presided over the Case of the Seattle 7. He is, indeed, no yokel who came out of the West as his critics made him out to be.

One morning last October he found himself sitting alongside President Nixon, whom he had met casually only once, in the White House Cabinet Room. Judge Boldt said, "This makes up for all the lumps," referring to the mockery of the labor leaders.

"Don't worry," replied Mr. Nixon who has also taken some jabs from labor chief George Meany, "you're in for lots more lumps."

Indeed, Judge Boldt was, and is. He's been in the room when auto union chief Leonard Woodcock called him and the rest of the board's public members "idiots ... incompetents'. and worse. But he's let everybody talk.

This hasn't been lack of leadership by the 60- year- old semi - retired judge. The key to all of the so-called chaos in the board room is the fact that the pay panel -- which now controls the wage raises and executive salaries of all America (never forget) -- was not originally intended to have such control powers. It was to be advisory. The decision - maker was to be Don Rumsfeld's Cost of Living Council. So the Pay Board was not structured, not really manned, not staffed, not financed, not even headquartered for such power.

Then George Meany turned it around. It became all powerful. And the Western judge knew this and his own power. At one point he told a colleague, "I'll take no more rudeness. You know I know how to crack down. My record proves that."

Record, indeed. He's the judge who put the brutal Mafia boxing czar, Frankie Carbo away for 25 years. And Mickey Cohen the Los Angeles thug for 15 years. And Dave Beck, too, for tax evasion. And sat in the Southern District of New York on the first Landrum-Griffin embezzlement case. And is a friend of Federal Judge Irving Kaufman, of staunch courage, on the bench.

And Judge Boldt. now a senior Federal judge, until recently chief jurist of the Washington (State) Western District, has sat in more districts than any other Federal justice -- all the way from Guam to Puerto Rico, from theArctic circle to Miami. He rides the circuit as a senior justice.

He has written a definitive text on anti- trust action. He has handled, from the bench, the most complicated litigation, about 2,000 cases of civil anti- trust action in the electrical equipment industry in 40 districts involving 25,000 separate claims for damages running into billions of dollars.

And he does not recall being reversed by a higher court. Also, it was Secretary of State William Rogers who suggested him as a Federal judge to President Eisenhower in 1953 and to President Nixon as Pay Board chairman last year. In between, Judge Boldt twice was offered appointment to the Federal Court of Appeals in his own home district.

Twice he rejected the offer, preferring to make the law instead of reviewing it. This accounts for much of his attitude as chairman. He sits and listens as though eager to avoid some reversible error. His attitude is good will -- let them talk, let it take a little longer, let's get it all in on the record. In the early stages, he had the power to reject the will of all other members. But when the Teamsters chief Frank Fitzsimmons suggested that he vote, only to break a tie, Judge Boldt agreed.

But he's a fighter. He's getting it organized, just ass he did when he got orders to move his OSS unit from the Mandalay, Burma Arena just retaken from the Japanese back in the spring of 1945, over the ghastly Burma road for more behind- the - lines fighting in China. He got into the big war by volunteering when he was almost 40, had three children and a good income. Why?

Because George (Gid) Boldt just happens to love his country. He was drafted by President Nixon, after a phone call from Domestic Council chief John Ehrlichman. He could have rejected the lumps, the abuse, the cut in income. But he didn't. He just happens to love his country. If this makes him a "yokel," then "right on" says he, using a phrase he picked up in court from the Seattle 7. And right on it is. The Pay Board is on the move.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Secret surveys show that American troops have thoroughly alienated the people they were sent to Vietnam to save.

After a cost of 55,000 American lives and $120 billion (b) out of American pockets, the withdrawing U. S. forces will leave behind a populace seething with anti-American resentment, suspicion and loathing.

The surveys were taken last year at all levels of Vietnamese society. They tell an ugly story of Vietnamese bitterness against Americans for killing innocent civilians, defoliating crops, forcing girls into prostitution, stimulating dope smuggling and reckless driving.

The dismaying results, of course, were quickly classified so the American people wouldn't find out what their sacrifices have produced. But we have seen several of the suppressed surveys. Here are a few highlights:

-RECKLESS KILLINGS-

"Ninety per cent of the interviewees," said one survey, "focused only on the bad aspects of U. S. soldiers (who) recklessly shoot their weapons from inside their compound because they suspect the VC (Viet Cong) are outside trying to fire rockets at them. Sometimes rounds hit the people's houses causing death ...."

"The people worry most," concluded another survey, "about American influence on Vietnamese society, which has caused a change in ethics and a lowering of moral standards. Robbery, bribery, corruption and dealing in the black market and in opium became more numerous with the influx of the Americans."

The questioning of 75 Vietnamese near Long Binh drew these responses: "Forty-three per cent of the respondents reported that the presence of U. S. troops in the region had ... fostered crime and corruption. Vietnamese officials, working at Long Binh base, with the help of U. S. soldiers secretly smuggled out goods worth billions of piasters. Smuggling white opium and marijuana has also become a big business.

"Seventy per cent of the interviewees said that the presence of U. S. troops has been the indirect cause of prostitution, 'cowboys' and thieves," declared another survey. "In Bien Hoa city alone, there are 200 prostitutes who cater to the Americans. As long as the prostitution remains, corruption including gambling, robbery and swindling will continue."

-GIRLS SEDUCED-

. Still another survey found: "Fifty-five per cent ... suggested that the wealth of U. S. soldiers has created many corrupt practices in Vietnamese society. Where there are U. S. soldiers, there are bar girls who are scantily dressed, act impolitely and openly display their sexual appeal."

. From a hamlet near a U. S. base: "The interviewees said ... sometimes U. S. soldiers have undressed in front of a crowd, teased girls and used their money to seduce women. Many people do not want to associate with Americans."

There are two things, at least, that the Vietnamese liked about Americans. The U. S. bases provided (1) jobs and (2) security from the Viet Cong. A suggested solution came from a survey of 62 U. S. - employed laborers, cooks and office workers.

"Most respondents recommend that unpopular activities be strictly prohibited," said the survey. "U. S. soldiers (should be) restricted and PX goods and careless spending of U. S. soldiers (should) be controlled."

Footnote: We will publish more survey results in a future column.

-UNDER THE DOME-

Representative Tom Steed, D-Okla., who handles appropriations for the White House, Treasury and Post Office, has developed an effective incentive system. "Bring in a surplus next year," he tells the bureaucrats, "and I'll be more receptive to what you ask for in your new budget." ... Senator George Aiken, R-Vt., a rock of integrity in the Senate for over 30 years, is now 79. Yet he still maintains a vigorous workday routine, thinks nothing of doing stoop labor in his garden at Putney, Vt.

Those House gadflies, H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, and Durward "Doc" Hall, R-Mo., love to carp so much that they happily accept gripes from less flamboyant House colleagues ... Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., whose sub-committee has life -or=death power over surface transportation, has named two transporation bigwigs to help run his presidential campaign. Hartke's campaign manager is Charles Roche, a lobbyist for Freight Forwarders, and the finance chairman is Eugene Garfield, president of Auto Train.

This has led Senate insiders to quip: "There are two Senators from Indiana. One is Bayh and the other is 'Bought.' "

Senator Hubert Humphrey, who is coming up fast in the Democratic presidential sweepstakes, has dashed off a quick note to ex-Nixon aide Pat Monyihan. "Don't get too rested in Academia," wrote HHH. "I am going to bring you back to Washington next January. "... Irreverent Congressmen have a new definition for a Senator: "Inflated balloon without the skin. "... Pampered Senators occupy multi-room suites and relax in taxpayer - subsidized steam baths. But the 24 hard-working capital guides are cramped into a single pantry-sized room beneath the great dome.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things that make life worth living:

New belly laughs and old love songs.

A cheering letter from home when rations are short, the top sergeant is in a bad mood, and the country you're in is far away and has a bad climate.

Helping a baby learn to walk by letting it hold on to your fingers.

The sun reflected back from a thousand-windowed skyscraper, turning it into a tower of dazzling light.

Lying on a beach in August and feeling plucked at by tentacles of foam and surf.

The taste of sardines and crackers when you're really starved.

Listening to the woes of a millionaire and discovering it is really true that money alone can't always buy happiness.

The thrill of being able to read all by yourself the story of Jack, the beanstalk and the giant.

The joy of having the prettiest girl in the First Grade stick her tongue out at you during recess, but then relenting and letting you carry her books home after school let out.

Carving her initials on a tree so deep in the woods that you are sure no one else will ever see it and guess your secret passion. When you go back years later, you find that the letters are undecipherable and the tree is only 25 feet from a main highway.

As a small boy in the long black stocking era, rubbing mud all over your kneecap so that the hole you wore in the stocking playing marbles hopefully wouldn't be seen by your mother.

Glumly learning early in life that you never get something for nothing—for example, that if a grownup gave you a glass of orange juice, it was only to get you to drink the castor oil mixed with it.

The smell of rainwet lilacs on an April morning.

Visiting your cousins in the country and sleeping on a real old-fashioned feather bed.

Feeling better after throwing up your first dinner of pig knuckles, sauerkraut and navy beans.

The glory of finding out that a dog your father brought home likes you better than anyone else in the whole family.

The importance of having everyone in the Sixth Grade know that you were the only member of the class who misspelled but a single word in the entire year. The word? Aboriginie.

(Editor's note: It looks like Boyle needs a return trip to the Sixth Grade.)

Looking at yourself in the mirror at 13, after expanding your chest with a breath so deep your face turned purple, and deciding you did have a build like Tarzan's.

Listening to your mother tell you what life was like when she was a small girl on a small farm in faraway Ireland, where Shamrocks grew like sunflowers in Kansas or corn in Iowa.

Sending away a boxtop and getting back 20 pictures of baseball players, including Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth.

Wondering what you'd buy first if you ever found the gold at the end of the rainbow.

Wondering if God ever took a nap or had a full night's sleep.

It is by such small things as these that our lives are greatly enriched.

Fate Of Surplus Food Program In Jeopardy

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Feeding thousands of Missouri's poor and needy may well depend on current bills before the legislature calling for the state to pick up the costs of distributing surplus foods.

A measure given first round approval in the Senate must clear a spending watchdog committee because of the $310,772 price tag for the remainder of this fiscal year and $840,000 for the next. There is a similar measure in the House.

As with many other federalstate programs, the unanticipated expense was precipitated by sudden federal cutbacks once the program was installed.

If the legislation fails, many of the 104 participating counties are expected to drop the distribution of surplus foods provided by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The counties are now expected to pay 20 per cent of distribution costs, whether from county funds or through contributions of cash or volunteer larbor.

The history of the surplus commodities program prompted State Welfare Director Proctor N. Carter to tell a congressional select committee last September:

"It seems to me that it is the old tactic of a federally presented program, which is enticing and difficult for the states to resist, and then the (federal) government lowers the boom by backing out partially, or wholly, and leaving the states the choice of abandoning a good program or try to find money to finance it."

The Missouri Legislature passed a law in 1961 which would enable counties to obtain and distribute surplus commodities by paying half the administrative costs, with the state making up the other half of the expenses.

The number of counties participating during the next seven years fluctuated between 34 and 39, including St. Louis and Jackson County (Kansas City).

St. Louis shifted to a food stamp program in 1963 on a pilot basis; 10 Missouri counties have since chosen this program in lieu of surplus food distribution, and 22 more have applied.

In 1967, the U.S. Department of Agriculture advised the state that it would pay the full distribution costs of the commodities program in 331 depressed counties in the nation, including 27 in Missouri.

That left 34 counties sharing distribution costs 50-50 with the state, and 53 other counties without any kind of food program.

But late in 1969, President Nixon announced the federal administration's intention to provide food programs nationwide. USDA followd up by saying it would fully fund distribution costs for all counties without a food program as of January 1970.

By May of last year, 69 counties were participating in the fully funded commodities program and 39 others were sharing the costs with the state.

Carter termed this policy inequitable because it placed a disproportionate share of the burden of costs on taxpayers in the 39 counties.

During the current fiscal year, however, USDA slashed its allotment by $394,000, and left it up to the state Division of Welfare to parcel out the remaining $1.2 million as it saw fit, stipulating the funds be spent only for distribution costs.

The state then determined that all commodity counties would have to come up with 20 per cent of the costs.

As of mid-January, 75 counties were able to stretch their treasuries to meet those costs, and 28 others began relying on voluntary contributions.

Reputed Japanese Army Survivor Found InGuam

AGANA, Guam (AP) — A man who told officials he is a former Japanese army sergeant and has been hiding in the jungle since World War II says, "It all seems like a dream."

"I keep thinking I'll wake up soon," Shoichi Yokoi said as he met with newsmen after two fishermen spotted him and subdued him near his cave home on Monday.

Guam Gov. Carlos Gamacho said first investigation showed no reason to disbelieve Yokoi's claim to be a Japanese army survivor, but Camacho said he knew of no way to establish the claim conclusively.

With Camacho standing at his side and honorary Japanese Consul James Hintaku serving as an interpreter, Yokoi described his life since Americans landed an invasion force in 1944.

He said he and nine other soldiers fled into the jungle in 1944 and the group gradually dwindled to two other men and himself. He said he had been alone since the two others died within a short time eight years ago.

The 5-foot-4 Yokoi said he is 58. Doctors said he weighed only 90 pounds and was anemic, but was otherwise in surprisingly good physical condition.

Yokoi said he was afraid to come out of hiding because he didn't know what would happen to him. He said he subsisted on fish, coconuts and wild vegetation.

Camacho said he will return Yokoi to Japan as soon as possible.

In Japan, officials of Aichi prefecture reported that official notification of Yokoi's death was made to his father, Eijiro, on July 30, 1945, two weeks before Japan surrendered.

Eijiro died 23 years ago at the age of 68 and his mother, Tsuru, 14 years ago at 70. Shoichi had no brothers or sisters, but Osamu Yokoi, 42, who was adopted by Shoichi's mother 17 years ago, said she never believed the army's report of her son's death.

"If his mother had lived, she would be extremely happy," he added.

Bunzo Minagawa, 52, another Japanese veteran who was found on Guam 12 years ago, said he lived with Yokoi and eight others for about a month in the jungle 28 years ago but separated because of fear that a large group would be hard to hide.

"I can't believe he lived alone in the jungles," said Minagawa, who spent 16 years on the island in the company of another Japanese soldier, Tadashi Ito, 51.

Bond To Announce Decision Feb. 1

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State Auditor Christopher "Kit" Bond is expected to announce his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor at a series of news conferences Tuesday, Feb. 1, in St. Louis, Kansas City and Springfield.

Bond's office said details would be announced later. Today's announcement said merely that Bond would "announce a decision on his future political plans."

But he has been acting like a candidate for months, issuing charges against the present Democratic state administration and making speeches around the state.

Already in the field for the GOP nomination is veteran Rep. R. J. "Bus" King, R-Clayton, who reportedly has lined up some solid business support around the state.

Welfare Probe Bares Five Double Claims

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An investigation by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare of nearly 100,000 welfare recipients in Missouri and Illinois have revealed only five cases in which persons claimed welfare in both states.

"Accordingly," said the report, which was sent to welfare officials of both states, "it does not appear that an elaborate preventive system is warranted at this time."

The investigation, conducted by the HEW regional office here, reviewed all of Missouri's 82,000 recipients and 13,000 recipients in the 13 Illinois counties along the Missouri line. It apparently followed U.S. Supreme Court action that struck down welfare residency requirements as unconstitutional.

There had been fear the action would lead to widespread abuse by recipients trying to claim assistance in bordering states.

Copies of the report were sent to Proctor N. Carter, Missouri welfare director, and Harold O. Swank, Illinois director of public aid.

Although an elaborate preventive system was not seen necessary, HEW suggested weaknesses were evident in that a recipient must report an intended move to another state in order to stop public assistance in the state he is leaving.

"Therefore, some low-cost, after-the-fact detection system between states with common borders would seem appropriate, HEW advised. 'Our audit has demonstrated the feasibility of such a system.

John C. Stanford, HEW regional audito director, said the department had not made a similar study of Kansas-Missouri, but he said HEW was aware there were a few instances where recipients attempted to claim welfare in both states.

Stephen Douglas attended the inauguration of Abraham Lincoln and is said to have held Lincoln's hat during his inaugural speech.

Approve Public Vote

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri House today adopted a concurrent resolution to make public the individual votes of committee members on bills on resolutions.

It will not become effective until also approved by the Senate.

The vote was 135-16 with opponents contending such a joint rule would subject committee members to the pressures of special interest groups and break down the committee system.

Rep. Thomas D. Graham, DJefferson City, called it "just another attempt to browbeat the legislature by certain media of information."

He said such a rule would prohibit committee members from voting their true convictions. "This is bad," he said. "You might as well do away with the committee system."

Minority members wanted the House to make its intentions clear by simply altering the House rules so committee member votes would become public at once.

The minority leader, Rep. John T. Russell, R-Lebanon, said he tried to get the rules committee to make that change but the three Democratic members rejected his move.

He tried the same procedure on the House floor but Speaker James E. Godfrey, D-St. Louis, ruled his move out of order.

Russell said he suspected the sponsors of the joint rule change want the resolution to die from inattention in the Senate.

But the majority leader, Rep. Richard J. Rabbitt, D-St. Louis, said the concurrent resolution should go on to the Senate and if the Senate didn't act on it in a reasonable time the House could consider some alternative action.

Rep. R. J. "Bus" King, R-Clayton, sponsor of several open hearing bills, said he was a member of the House for two terms when committee votes were public and there was no breakdown in the committee system as Graham suggested.

U.S. Naval Academy Doesn't Want To Go Co-educational

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Citing tradition and practicalities, several members of the 4,000-man brigade of mid-shipmen at the U. S. Naval Academy say they don't want their school to go coeducational.

"It's completely impractical," said Robert Hardy, 21, a senior from Columbus, Miss. "The idea of this place is to train shipboard officers, but there's nowhere women can serve in the fleet yet."

The prospect of women joining the brigade has become more than the campus joke it once was. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Rep. John McDonald, R-Mich., have nominated teen-age girls for appointment to Annapolis.

To a man, the future Navy officers interviewed at the academy said they do not think the mission of the school and its physical layout one dormitory - are geared for women.

"I'd probably be in favor of it from the standout of making this place nicer to go to, but from the standpoint of training I don't think this place is set up for women," said Lloyd Holz, a 22-year-old senior from Schulenburg, Tex.

Mike Candalor, 21, a senior from Johnsonburg, Pa., said he felt it would be difficult to integrate coeds into such nonclassroom programs as summer sea training and intramural athletics.

"Would girls box like we have to?" Candalor wondered. "I got my nose blodied doing it, but would a girl?"

Robert Musselman said he doesn't take the nominations seriously. "It's not much more than politicans trying to get their names in the newspapers," said the 21-year-old senior from Atlanta, Ga.

He suggested that if the Navy decided women could benefit from the educational facilities at the academy, girls could be permitted to attend classes without formally joining the brigade.

Girl Vowels Need Liberating

NEW YORK (AP) -- Five little girls need liberation from 21 bullying boys, according to a group of women from Suffolk County, Long Island.

The girls represent the voeels of the alphabet. The boys are the consonants.. And all 26 are caricatured in a program called Alpha One used in schools throughout the country to teach first graders their ABCs.

To the Suffolk women, the program is blatantly sexist, because the girl- vowels are shown as weak, weeping creatures who must ask the chauvinist consonants for protection and support.

"It presents a very poor image for little girls," said Mrs. Lois Rodriguez, a kindergarten teacher — she does not use the program — and a spokeswoman for Suffolk Women's Liberation.

The multimedia package, including books, filmstrips and posters, gives each letter a sex and a personality. The letter-people's interactions with one another in Alpha Land -- how Miss A gets along with Mr. T, for instance -- are meant to help children learn word formation from real - life situations.

What the feminist mothers are protesting are such too- real situations as the one where Mr. C and Mr. K determine which vowels belong to them. Says Mrs. Rodriguez, "The whole idea of girls belonging to boys is what's awful. The firls are never consulted."

Swimmer Over The Hill At 19

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Debbie Meyer says she's over the hill as a competitive swimmer at the age of 19.

She announced her retirement Monday after a disappointing season in 1971 that saw younger girls come along and break the last of her national and world swimming records.

Debbie (they called her 'Peanut' because she liked peanut butter) hit her prime at 16, winning three Gold Medals in the 1968 Olympic Games at Mexico City.

Mentally, she had been aiming at the 1972 Games at Munich, but physically "my arms didn't jibe."

"Dad always told me when swimming got to be a daily chore and no fun to hang up my suit," said Debbie, who swam competitively ever since she was 12 years old under Coach Sherman Chavoor of Arden Hills Swim and Tennis Club in suburban Sacramento.

"Even back in September when I talked about giving it up, I was trying to convince myself not to. Two weeks ago I finally decided to quit," Deqbie said.

"And I'm loving every minute of it. Now I get to stay up late and watch the late movies and sleep in. It's great!"

Now a sophomore at nearby American River College, Debbie plans to continue her education at either UCLA or Stanford.

She said she had pondered retirement "for a long time.

"I especially thought about it around Christmas time when I was doing so bad. I had my mind psyched to continue, but my arms didn't jibe," Debbie said.

Davis-Hetlinger

EMPORIA, Kan. — In a ceremony conducted the afternoon of Dec. 26, in the First Presbyterian church, Miss Johanna Marie Hetlinger was married to Larry Eugene Davis.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Maurice McLean, 1912 Briarcliff Lane, and the late Duane F. Hetlinger. Davis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Davis of Sikeston, Mo.

The double ring service was read by Stafford Studer, the violinist was Miss Arlan Smith and the organist was Kenneth Gerhardt.

The bride, given in marriage by her stepfather, Maurice McLean, wore a dress of candlelight organza over peau de soie and a floor length veil held with a Juliet cap of lace and pink velvet ribbon. Her dress was fashioned with an Empire waistline and trimmed with lace appliques and pink velvet ribbon. She carried a red rose in a nosegay of pink roses and ferns.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Miss Ellen McLean, and the bridesmaid was Miss Mary Browne.

The best man was Thomas Davis, Seattle, Wash., brother of the groom. John Hetlinger, brother of the bride, was the groomsman. Ushers were Rick Davis, James McLean and Peter Hetlinger.

The reception after the ceremony was held in the home of the bride's parents.

Legs Reappear In Fashion

By ALISON LERRICK
AP Fashion Writer

PARIS (AP) — The summer fashion season began in French salons Monday, and one thing seemed clear: women will soon be showing legs again.

At Louis Feraud, who showed this morning, the mini is back, from a demure three inches above the knee to a more provocative three inches below the hips. With it go sheer stockings and very high toeless black or red pumps, to make more of a good thing.

Feraud is thinking in black and white for summer. As a contrast his models wore red lipstick, red hair and even red eyeliner to match wide-sashes wrapped around the waist.

As usual, this designer is torn between two, and in his opinion, usually contradictory images of women. so, his collection was split almost entirely into black and white, with some pleasing attempts to reconciling the two extremes.

White is for little schoolgirl dresses, with frills, pleats, trucks and white lace anywhere from hem to elbow. His sweater dresses even trailed white wool roses. Black is for satin and shantung and slinky skirts that outline and underline the derriere.

But the prettiest clothes mixed both, as in a black kimono over black satin pants. When rolled up, the cuffs and sleeves showed white.

Venet, who also showed Monday, is as ever a tailor's tailor. As usual, his coats are immaculately cut, welted and billowing out at a back. Long jackets in bright blue, green, orange or yellow or over straight white pants, just the thing for a millionaire's wife to go marketing in, with saddle shoes, of course.

But Venet slipped up on feathers, his favorite motif for prints. Naked Indian chiefs are hardly the thing for the cocktail hour. And even in organza, what woman wants to go to dinner in a flurry of birds of prey disguised as peacocks?

The Bank of England, located on London's narrow Threadneedle Street is popularly known as "The Old Lady of Threadneedle Street."

POLLY'S POINTERS

Make Nice Lap Robes Out of Old Scarves

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Amy could sew together some of her many scarves to make one piece of fabric, line it and sew up a side seam, put in an elastic waistband and have one of the popular patchwork hostess skirts.—MRS. M. U.

DEAR GIRLS—Such a skirt would have more body and perhaps hang better if a thin cotton batting was put between the sewed-together scarves and the lining and then a simple quilting pattern, like diamonds or squares, done on the sewing machine.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Amy could group her scarves by their washability, colors, etc., and make quilt tops out of them. Mine were not quite the same size so I crazy-quilted strips between them so they came out even in width and length. I also added a border all around.—GRANNY

DEAR POLLY—Do tell Amy who has all those silk, synthetic and wool scarves to sew four of them to make a square and face with a lining of any medium-weight material, even old sheets, to make lap robes for wheelchair patients in one of our veterans' hospitals. If she does not sew, there are many women's church groups who would be glad to have such scarves to use.—MRS. B. N.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Decoupage seems to be the new decorating trick and sometimes gilt, gold and silver are seen pasted on entire walls. I would like to know how this is done or if it might be gold or silver wallpaper.—MRS. C. H.

DEAR POLLY—After struggling to help my husband carry a mattress up the stairs I decided that one of my biggest Pet Peeves is that the mattress manufacturers do not put handles on the ends of mattresses. The ones on the sides are not much help at any time.—MRS. A. W.

DEAR POLLY—I use a light wire egg beater to flatten drop cookies. This is easy and also adds a decorative look to the cookies.

Before putting my electric fan away for the winter I wrapped a piece of terry cloth around a six-inch stick, dipped this in hot, soapy water and cleaned the dust off all the hard-to-get to openings. A clean cloth was used to rinse these places with clear water.—CLARA

DEAR POLLY—A rubber band wrapped around the handle of a cooking utensil or spoon will keep it from slipping into the pan while preparing food or even when it is being served.—MARGARET

DEAR POLLY—I operate a newsstand-type of paper route and have several self-service machines at various locations. My Pet Peeve is that a few people (fortunately not the majority) take two or more papers for the price of one. They think they are cheating the big newspaper that may make millions a year but they are not. They are cheating me, the lowly carrier, with pennies for profits. If I lose one Sunday paper I have to sell four to make up for it.—A. T. G.

Ann Landers

Greeting Cards Upsetting Her

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a traveling man and an inveterate newspaper reader. Your comumn is a must for me and I read it all over the country. Sometimes I read it twice a day--when I'm on the road. This is what I am writing about. Can you solve a riddle for me?

Recently I was in Detroit and caught you in the Free Press. The column that morning was about a young guy who couldn't urinate unless he was alone. He was very worried because he was about to be inducted into the Army and he knew he'd never have any privacy there. That same morning I flew to Boston from Detroit and picked up the Herald-Traveler at the hotel. I read the same column I had read in the Detroit paper, but the language was different. It didn't say anything about the guy's inability to urinate. It said he was afraid to go to the bathroom.

Do you write different answers for certain papers? Please explain.-- A Road Rat

Dear Road: The very same column is sent to all client papers. Each editor handles it as he sees fit. It might be that nobody in Boston urinates. They only go to the bathroom.

Dear Ann Landers: I am so burned up right now that I have to let off steam or I'll explode. It's my dizzy cousin who lives in Detroit. She is constantly sending me greeting cards. She writes in every bit of white space from top to bottom, then she writes up and down the sides of the card, over the printed message and on the back. It's a mess. As if that's not enough she underlines everything so I won't miss the point. It's maddening. Does she think I'm am idiot? At the end of a sentence that's supposed to be funny, she scribbles "HA HA. GET IT?"

Should I tell this donkey that I don't enjoy her cards, that they make me mad and to please stop sendint them? --Leave It To Hallmark

Dear Leave It: You told me ---that's enough. I see no point in hurting your cousin's feelings. When her cards come, give them a quick glance than throw them out. HA HA, GET IT?

Dear Ann Landers: My boyfriend is 24 and so am I. We have been engaged three times in the last four years. When the time comes to set the date, Ike gets sick or something. This morning we were to mail the invitations and Ike said he wasn't sure he wanted to get married and needed "more time."

The last disappointment upset me terribly. I still see him and am willing to give him another chance, but certain members of my family are bugging me. They say Ike is stringing me along, that he is selfish and insincere. I'm on the verge of breaking off relations with both my parents and my sisters. They should be giving me hope and encouragement instead of undermining my confidence in Ike. Do you agree? Please answer, Ann, I want them to see it. --- Needing Confidence

Dear Needing: I agree -- you should definitely break off relations. But not with your family. It's Ike who ought to be ditched. Should you manage to bludgeon him into marriage one of these days, you'll regret it. The guy is bonkers.

Bears Meet NCAA College Champs

SPRINGFIELD — One of the biggest non-conference outings of the year opens semester break action for the Southwest Missouri State College basketball Bears Wednesday night.

Defending NCAA College Division national champion Evansville University will meet SMS in McDonald Arena with tipoff time set for 7:30 p.m.

Wednesday's tilt will be the first start for the Bears in 11 days since SMS won a 74-70 league contest from Central Missouri State College. The win raised the Bears' record to 4-6 for the year.

Evansville, meanwhile, has split decisions in its last two outings, a 94-81 loss to St. Louis University and a 97-81 victory over Philadelphia Textile, for an 11-5 campaign standard.

Coach Arad McCutchan's Aces have rolled past most opponents, grabbing the title in their own Holiday Tournament, and running up scores above the century mark on four difference occasions.

"It is an extremely fast and an extremely explosive team," Coach Bill Thomas emphasizes. "The Aces use a devastating defense and a fast break that is averaging 86 points per game. Our scouting report says Evansville is an outstanding club."

Although Evansville lost three starters from the squad that captured the Aces' fifth NCAA crown, McCutchan did return Don Buse, the Most Valuable Player in three different tournament ballotings including the NCAA finals, and Rick Coffey, who gained a spot on the NCAA -All-Tournemant team.

Buse, who is termed by Thomas as "possibly the best defensive guard in the nation," has been averaging better than 12 points per game. The 6-4 senior guard is third in scoring.

Coffey, a 6-3 forward, tops the pointmaking for the Aces with a 17.6 average, and is second in rebounding with a 6.0 average. The third Evansville player in double figures for the year is 6-9 senior center Steve Welmer, averaging 17.4 points, and 10.4 rebounds.

Joining these three on the court will probably be Greg Martin, a 6-1 forward, and Curt John, a 6-2 guard. Both are averaging better than eight points per game for the Aces.

"We will have to play our very best game of the year to have a chance to win," believes Thomas. "It will probably all boil down to whether we can take the defensive pressure. Evansville gets a lot of shots from the steal and fast break. We are going to have to be able to move the ball down, and get our offense going without Evansville stealing."

Getting the assignment in the backcourt for the Bears will be 5-10 guard Bob Curl and 6-2 guard Zack Townsend. Townsend leads the scoring with a 22.6 average, and Curl is averaging 13.0.

Completing the SMS lineup will be 6-4 sophomore Rick Briscoe and 6-3 freshman Daryel Garrison at forwards, with 6-8 sophomore William Doolittle starting at center. Garrison is also averaging 13 points per game.

Wednesday night will be the sixth meeting between SMS and Evansville. The Aces hold a 3-2 edge in the series.

Wednesday night will be the sixth meeting between SMS and Evansville. The Aces hold a 3-2 edge in the series.

"This is a very big game for us and quite a challenge," said Thomas. "I'm happy with our progress. We are doing a good job in practice, and I think we are ready for the game."

ASU Speedy

JONESBORO, Ark. -- Thomas Hill sped to his second victory of the indoor season and the Arkansas State Indians set three school records in the Southern USTFF meet in Jackson, Miss., last Saturday.

Hill took an easy victory in the 60-yard high hurdles in 7.1, after running a pair of 7.2's in the prelims and semifinals. He didn't encounter the same success the night before at Philadelphia, Pa., where he ran 7.2 in the semifinals, before finishing last in the finals.

"Tom has a slight hip injury that is keeping him on top of the hurdle too long," said ASU mentor Thad Talley. "In addition to that, I think he's pressing a little and just needs some time and a few more races.

"Don't forget, he was completely out of competition for a year, and it's hard to start right back on top where he left off."

Talley was plaeased with several aspects of the indoor meet at Jackson, particularly the three school records by the Indians.

Half-miler John Scurto blazed to a 2:13.6 recording in the 1000 yard run for a second place finish. His record setting time topped the old school standard of 2:19.2 by Billy Bell in 1970.

Scurto also ran a 1:54.2 anchor leg on the record setting two mile relay team, which finished second to Louisiana State with a 7:44.5. The old school standard for the event was 7:56.6 established in 1971.

Scurto, Willie Davidson and Jim Bailey were members of the group last year which set the mark and they also had a hand in topping it at Jackson. Bailey ran an impressive 1:55 third leg while Davidson turned in a good 1:56.2 to open the race.

Junior Tommy Vaughan recorded a 1:59 as the fourth member of the record setting two mile relay team.

Long Beach Eyes Crack At UCLA

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — It's hard to take basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian of Long Beach State seriously when he says he isn't thinking about UCLA. It gets harder when, in the next breath, he starts talking about what his third-ranked 49ers will have to do if they find themselves on the same court with the mighty Bruins.

"Of course, you can't beat UCLA if you can't get through their press and stop their fast break," the coach says. "If you can do those things, then they're down to earth.

"They run so well that if you just relax for a second they've got a bucket. I hope we get to play them."

UCLA isn't on Long Beach State's schedule. "I don't blame them," Tarkanian says. But in Long Beach 30 miles south of the Bruins in Westwood, it's hard to ignore John Wooden's giants of college basketball, who again this year may stand between the 49ers and a chance at the national title.

It's also hard to ignore the Bruins nationally. In nationwide balloting in this week's college basketball poll, they received all 43 first-place votes and 860 points. They've won all 14 games played this season.

So has Marquette, ranked second. Long Beach State was rated third, followed by Louisville, North Carolina, Ohio State, Southern California, Virginia, Penn and Florida State.

South Carolina headed the second ten. Then came Southwestern Louisiana, Brigham Young, Marshall, Hawaii, Minnesota, Princeton, Maryland, Northern Illinois and Missouri.

Tarkanian's unheralded team nearly beat UCLA in the NCAA regionals last year, but the Bruins squaked by 57-55—and then rolled to their fifth straight NCAA championship.

This year, however, the 49ers are anything but unheralded. They have won 15 of 16 games and rank third in the nation. They also have their fans hoping that this may be the year they end UCLA's reign.

The Top Twenty, with firstplace votes in parentheses, won-lost records through games of Saturday, Jan. 22 and total points on the basis of 20 for first, 18 for second, 16, 14, 12, 10, 9, 8, etc.

Barber Edges Archer

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Portly, aging Miller Barber had just finished a marathon, 21hole playoff and he was sighing in weariness with perspiration glistening on his bald head and streaming down beside the aviators' glasses he always wears.

"I was just trying to get in— just trying to finish," the 40year-old veteran said Monday after out-lasting George Archer in pro golf's longest playoff in more than a quarter of a century.

Barber, who had to shoot a fourth-round 65 Sunday to gain a spot in the playoff, rolled in an 18-foot birdie putt from below the cup on the 93rd hole to take down the title and the $30,000 first prize in the Dean Martin-Tucson Open golf tournament.

"We were both about to fall down," Barber said in a brief interview before catching a plane home to Sherman, Tex. to see his new son.

Archer, a 32-year-old former Masters champion and one of the hottest players now on the tour, picked up $17,100 for second place. He left immediately after finishing and was not available for comment.

It was the second extra round in three weeks for the 6-foot-6 Archer, who beat Dave Hill and Tommy Aaron in a nationally televised 18 hole affair for the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open crown in the first tournament on the long pro schedule.

And it was the longest playoff since Lloyd Mangrum went 36 holes to beat Byron Nelson and Vic Ghezzi for the 1946 United States Open title at Canterbury in Cleveland. That one was set up differently.

After they tied at the end of 18, another 18 was scheduled.

No Light Shed On Barred Skiers

TOKYO (AP) — Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said today the Olympic movement "is an ideal spirit to combat commercialism and politics," but he shed no light on which skiers might be kept out of next week's Olympics on grounds of commercialism.

"We are living in a materialistic world," Brundage told some 100 newsmen at a Japan Press Club luncheon.

Asked specifically about some skiers, including top Austrian competitors, Brundage said, "I will reserve my comment until after the eligibility committee meeting. I still don't know which athlete is competing in what event."

The eligibility committee meets Wednesday in Tokyo.

Aside from questions of barring skiers because of past commercialism, Brundage added that athletes who bring advertisements into the Winter Olympics opening Feb. 3 in Sapporo, northern Japan, will be ineligible.

Marquette Coach Foregoes Berating After Close Call

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Al McGuire, Marquette's usually fiery basketball coach, did an about-face, but his Warriors didn't.

The unbeaten Warriors ran their season's winning streak to 15 Monday night, defeating Notre Dame 71-62, while McGuire, who has been berating his team after virtually every victory, was surprisingly calm after the unexpectedly close call against the 3-9 Fighting Irish.

Instead, he reserved most of his comments for Notre Dame. "Thet should be proud," he said, referring to the losers. "They played well. Digger Phelps has done an excellent job. Every time we went to the zone, he had his team hold the ball, which was a smart move."

Phelps also was proud of his team. "I felt we did a great job," he said, "But we got a little tired at the end and missed some key shots. But we kept our poise and confidence the whole game. Remember, we played the No. 2 team in the country and they didn't run us off the court. Before the season ends we're going to knock off some of those biggies."

Jim Chones paced Marquette with 24 points. Gary Novak of Notre Dame scored 25.

Meanwhile, fourth-ranked Louisville walloped North Texas State 95-72 for its 13th consecutive victory following a season-opening one-point loss to Florida.

The Cardinals, now 3-0 in the Missouri Valley Conference, held North Texas scoreless for nearly the first four minutes while racing to a 9-0 lead. Louisville's Jim Price led all scorers with 23 points, while teammate Ron Thomas scored 17 points and grabbed 22 rebounds.

Brigham Young, the No. 13 team, routed Athletes in Action 109-59 as 6-foot-11 Kresimir Cosic scored 17 points, snared 18 rebounds and blocked 11 shots.

Northern Illinois, rated 19th, registered its 10th consecutive victory and 11th in 12 games, handing Central Michigan its worst setback in eight years 93-64. Sophomore Jim Bradley led Northern Illinois with 25 points.

Eau Claire of Wisconsin, ranked the nation's top small college team, suffered its first loss in 14 games, bowing to North Dakota 73-70. Craig Skarperud's 22 points led North Dakota, now 12-4. Mike Ratliff had 25 points and Frank Schade 24 for Eau Claire.

Jim Andrews poured in 34 points as Kentucky overpowered Vanderbilt 106-80 in a rough game. Kentucky's Larry Stemper was ejected from the game after decking the Commodores' Jan Van Breda Kolff.

Elsewhere, it was: Georgia 79, Auburn 72; Louisiana State 84, Florida 73; Kansas 74, Iowa State 71; Oklahoma 82, Oklahoma State 68; Duquesne 65, Xavier 57; Fordham 81, Army 71; Eastern Kentucky 96, Western Kentucky 78; Jacksonville 107, Stetson 82; New Mexico 96, Texas-Arlington 68; West Texas State 84, Long Island 69; Arizona State 96, Los Angeles State 89; Washington 86, Oregon State 73; Wyoming 76, Creighton 65; California 89, Santa Clara 79; Washington State 73, Oregon 56.

KU,OU Keep Pace In Big Eight Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Defending champion Kansas and title hopeful Oklahoma kept pace in the Big Eight Conference basketball race Monday night, although they took different routes to victory.

Kansas came from five points behind in the final five minutes, outscored Iowa State, 12-4, down the stretch and made off with a 74-71 decision over the Cyclones at Lawrence, Kan. Oklahoma's Sooners nudged to a 45-34 halftime lead over Oklahoma State, then turned the Bedlam Series renewal into a rout in the second half on the way to an 82-68 homecourt blitzing of the Cowboys.

Both winners now share second in the Big Eight with 3-1 records behind Nebraska's 3-0 mark. Kansas gets a crack at the Cornhuskers Saturday, but first Nebraska visits Oklahoma State Wednesday night with a good chance to go 4-0.

OSU is alone in the league cellar at -5 and now has lost 15 of 17 starts. Iowa State slipped to 1-4 and 8-9. The Jayhawks are 6-9 for all games and Oklahoma 7-8.

Kansas was sluggish in the first half, trailing by as much as 11 points and facing a 39-30 deficit at intermission. Bud Stallworth, who led all scorers with 24 points, helped the Jays catch up at 47 - all with 11 minutes left.

Tom Kivisto finally gave Kansas the lead for good with a jump shot and a pair of free throws to snap a 67-67 deadlock. The Cyclones got back within one before Kivisto whipped a court-long pass to Neal Mask, whose layup with 11 seconds left clinched it.

Senior forward Andrew Petes had 22 points and 8 rebounds for OU while Bobby Jack and Ted Evans added 13 apiece. Jerry Clack's 18 paced the Pokes.

Vicksburg Siege: Two-Sided Loss

in the
Commercial Appeal

If you ever visit the Civil War battlefield at Vicksburg, Miss., don't stop with the monuments and markers. Look at the old courthouse, now a museum, sitting high on the bluff like a sentinel. Drive up and down the brick streets where some of the same buildings of 1863 are still standing and in use.

The battlefield is placid today. Where Rebels and Yankees dug trenches and met in hand-to- hand combat there is apark, softened by time, by more than a century, and barely scarred.

There are curving roads sloping down the edges of ravines where blood was poured by bucketfuls, an imposing equestrian statue of U.S. Grant near where he and a 12- year-old son lived in a headquarters spot in rude tents, the neatly tended Shirley House which is the last existing structure dating to the battle, and on the bluff, 200 feet above the Mississippi River, an obelisk which would have to be modest only beside the Washington Monument.

I won't dwell with the history of the 47-day siege of Vicksburg. Memphis author Shelby Foote has told the whole story graphically in 106 pages of his second volume of "The Civil War: A Narrative," and even those pages don't tell it all. You have to read about what led to the siege, and what followed it, to put it in context.

Grant's canals on the Louisiana bank, Porter's naval sneak past Confederate batteries, Grierson's cavalry escapade, Sherman's diversions, the battles of the Big Black River and Champion Hill, and then what Foote calls "The Beleaguered City"— all fit together in a jigsaw puzzle. Even the earlier naval battle on the Mississippi at Memphis is part of the Vicksburg story.

I traveled to Vicksburg the day after Thanksgiving, in company with my 75-year- old father- in- law, Elton Horne, of Gulfport, Miss. Two of his uncles fought at Vicksburg, and a brother lived there for many years. He used to take my wife over the park when she was a child.

But together, I new to the place and he an old hand, we marveled at the landscape. The road takes you first through Yankee positions where long trenches were dug and cannons were pulled by pieces up impossible inclines. You come to the bluff over the river, looking down on what was then the Mississippi but is now called the "dead river," since the channel changed, and you wonder how any boats ever got past. Circling back, you ride over the high ground held by the Confederates defending Vicksburg in a wide arc — and again you wonder how a foe could have attacked without losing.

You leave the green park and go back to the books where you find the details. The Rebels were well entrenched with a series of dirt forts. Grant assaulted in force twice in May of 1863 and fell back, deciding on a siege. He won the war of attrition, but in the end the Federal casualties and the Confederate losses were almost equal. And from all I can read so far, neither side hated the other — they simply shot at each other in daylight and shouted messages across the lines at night. It was a grim, dirty game of carnage carried out at higher levels, leaving thousands dead, mutilated and wounded or sick.

Vicksburg was starved out and feebly supplied by the Confederate generals who could not see what was happening. On July 3, 1863, Rebel Gen. John Pemberton sat down with Grant to discuss surrender terms and on July 4 they came to agreement. All the captured Johnny Rebs were paroled. A funny kind of war.

But it's a strange land. Elton Horne and I talked about the archeology of the region as we drove over from Jackson. Deep ravines and high hills of blown dirt — centuries old and packed hard, perfect for Union trenches and tunnels in 1863, now hewn by highway engineers and pockmarked by youngsters who like to leave their initials carved for posterity.

We crossed the Vicksburg bridge, beside a new one going up for the Interstate Highway System, into Louisiana and on into the flat, black delta to Talluhah, and back over the levee and into the battlefield after lunch in a restaurant where black waitresses are dressed as Aunt Jemima types.

There is cotton, there is tradition, there is heritage, there is beauty. Nothing much has changed.

Blacksmith, 84, Misses Horses

NAPOLEON, Ohio (AP) — Matt Becker is a wiry 84-year-old man who knows he is one of a dying breed.

He's a blacksmith a trade he has followed 66 years and still works at six-days a week.

He came to the United States from Germany when he was 18, after learning the blacksmith trade from his grandfather.

"I didn't like it at first because I couldn't speak English," Becker said of the trade in his new country. But he stuck with it because "it's the only thing I know."

He walks one mile each morning from his home to the rustic old shop, considered a local landmark. "I want to work as long as I'm able," he said.

The thing he misses most from his work in a modern world is horses. "I haven't shod a horse in 30 years," he said. "Shoeing horses started slacking off around 1940. Besides, I couldn't handle one at my age anyway."

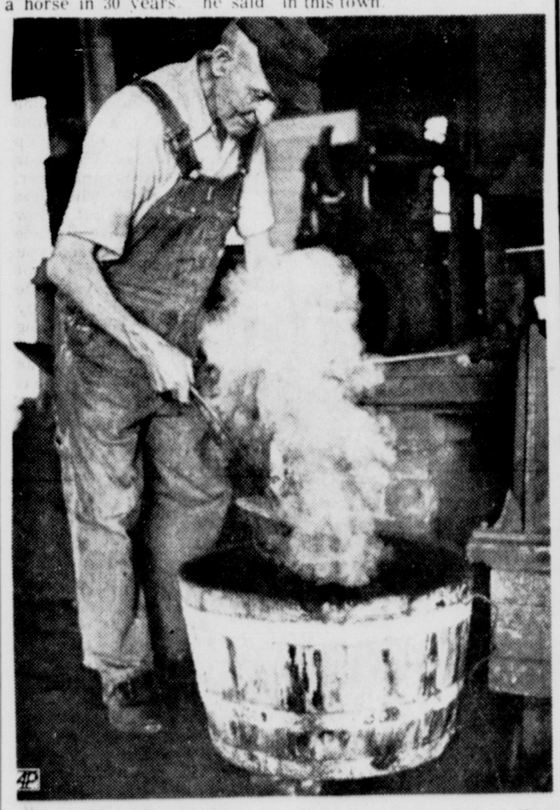
Although he still uses many of the old tools of his trade, most of his work now is spent sharpening blades for mowers and repairing parts for tractors and farm implements.

He said many farmers in the area come to him "because I can fix things for them that might take weeks to have repaired at a factory."

Motorists passing his shop often hear the clang of hammer on metal as he shapes a piece of metal on his anvil.

He started his shop here in 1920 as a partnership but soon bought out his partner because there was not enough work for two men.

"When I'm gone," he noted, "there won't be a blacksmith in this town."



OLD TRADE — Matt Becker, 84, works in his blacksmith shop at Napoleon, Ohio, where he has been a blacksmith since 1920. Becker learned the trade 66 years ago in his native Germany.

SPLIT in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference was formalized with the ouster of Rev. Jesse Jackson, left, leader of Operation Breadbasket in Chicago, by the Atlanta headquarters of Rev. Ralph Abernathy, right, successor to Martin Luther King as SCLC president. Jackson is establishing a new Chicago-based economic and political organization called PUSH (People United to Save Humanity).

On Closer Inspection, The Misguided Missiles

An incredibly inaccurate defense

by U.S. Rep.
JOHN SCHMITZ
of California

A curious event took place in the Senate of the United States in early October. A Senator actually took it upon himself to attempt to increase the effectiveness of our strategic forces rather than calling for further unilateral disarmament.

Senator James Buckley made a valiant effort to amend the Military Procurement Act with measures which would have given our strategic missile forces a "damage limiting" capability by increasing their accuracy to the point of being able to effectively neutralize Soviet nuclear missiles in their hardened silos.

Although the U.S. has for years had the technological know-how necessary to increase the accuracy of both our land and sea based missiles so that they would be able to destroy Soviet ICBM's on Soviet soil, we decided to make our missile forces less accurate than they might be. If this seems incredible to you, it seems no less incredible to me and to a growing number of other members of Congress.

The theory behind purposely lowering the effectiveness of the forces on which our survival depends goes like this: If we were able to knock out the Soviet missile force they might be tempted to strike us first to prevent his from happening. Thus we should not deploy weapons capable of damaging the Soviet rocket force by instead target less effective missiles on Soviet urban and industrial targets which are easy to destroy. We will hold the Soviet people hostage while at the same time hoping that the Soviets will follow our example and not develop weapons capable of destroying our missile force. This would supposedly result in a condition known as "Mututal Assured Destruction," abbreviated as "MAD" and obviously tending in that direction.

If you ever wondered why the Department of Defense seemed more concerned with dead Russians than live Americans, this is the reason. This strategy of attacking civilians only was not conceived and set up as defense policy by military men but by former Secretary of Defense McNamara's intellectuals. If you suspect that the Soviets might not be unthinking enough to emulate our example, which assures that if war breaks out there will be total unlimited disaster for both sides, you would be correct.

The Soviet strategic missile force is being sepecifically designed to destroy, not our cities and industry, but our strategic weapons which could inflict retaliatory damage on them. As Senator Bucklev correctly pointed out in arguing for his amendments, "It is now generally conceded that within another two or three years, if present trends are allowed to continue, the Soviet Union will have achieved the capacity to destroy virtually all our land-based strategic forces in a preemptive strike."

This is one of several reasons it is absolutely necessary that we improve the accuracy of our missile forces with all speed. Suppose the Soviet Union strikes with their SS-9 — a huge ICBM capable of carrying one 25-megaton warhead or three 5-megaton warheads (in comparison, our Minuteman carries only one 1/2 megaton warhead or three 200 kiloton warheads) — in combination with their submarine launched ballistic missiles, thereby destroying not only our Minuteman force but also our strategic bomber force before it can get off the ground. It is true that we would still have our Polaris - Poseidon submarines with which to retaliate. But the soviets would have over 900 SS-11 and SS-13 ICBM's (similar to our Minuteman) still unlaunched. The President, if still alive, would then have the choice only of launching our Polaris- Poseidon missiles at Soviet cities, thus bringing unimaginable devastation on the U.S., or surrendering. He would not be able to order the submarines to destroy the Soviet SS-11 and SS-13 counter-city reserve forces before they are launched because we have deliberately made our missiles inaccurate enough so that they will not be able to critically damage the Soviet hardened missile force. He would not have much of a choice.

By failing to make our missiles hard-silo accurate — a relatively inexpensive modification — in the hopes of not provoking a Soviet attack, we are actually encouaging just such an attack by increasing the prospects for the enemy's success. Not only is this "MAD" posture strategically indefensible, but it is also profoundly immoral to purposely lock oneself into a position where the only possible strategy is to annihilaete millions of noncombatants.

What's The Law

College Not Liable

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

While some coeds pursue learning, Edna pursued everything but learning. She answered more questions on the telephone than in class, believed in every / man for herself, used drugs, rarely spent a night in her dormitory, spent more time in strange beds than a politician, associated with known criminals and refused to return home at the end of the school semester.

The result? Edna's parents sued the college for permitting their daughter to fall into errant ways.

"When parents send their children away to college," they complained in court, "they have a right to rely upon the college to keep a concerned and watchful eye on them. In Edna's case, the university officials must have been wearing blinders."

"We operate a fountain of learning," was the defense, "and if kids choose not to drink from it, that's not our problem. We give degrees, but not the third degree." IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the college liable for Edna's going bad?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a college has no duty to regulate the private lives of its students, to control the students' coming and goings and to improve their associations. A university is an institution / for the advancement of knowledge and learning, noted the judge, and is neither a nursery school, a boarding school nor a prison. Persons who meet the required qualifications and who abide by the university rules and regulations are permitted to attend and must be presumed to have sufficient maturity to conduct their own personal affairs. Based upon a 1971 Ohio Court of Common Pleas Decision)

Things Some People Said In 1971...And Wish They Hadn't

in the
Commercial Appeal

WASHINGTON — The year 1971 produced its share of losers. But worse than losing is being responsible for someone else's losing. Aren't you glad you weren't the person who said to:

Gen. Yahya Khan, president of Pakistan: "My advice, Mr. President, is to arrest Sheik Mujibur and teach the East Pakistanis a lesson."

To a Time magazine editor: "Hey, they're looking for an editor at Look and will pay twice the salary."

To Chiang Kai-shek: "Generalissimo, this will make you laugh. Somebody started a wild rumor that Nixon is going to visit Peking. Hahahahahaha."

To Premier Sato of Japan: "I have it on highest authority that President Nixon will reject a surcharge on foreign imports."

To Senator Fred Harris: "You announce for president, and we'll get you the money."

To Larry O'Brien, chairman of the Democratic Party: "Don't worry about the deficit. Congress will pass a bill which will give us 20 million dollars."

To Jan Stenerud, place kicker for the Kansas City Chiefs: "OK, Jan, get this easy kick from the 32-yard line, and we wrap up the ball game."

To Judge Mildred Lillie of Los Angeles: "President Nixon is going to nominate you to the Supreme Court, and since you're a woman there is no way the American Bar Association can prevent it."

To a housewife: "We're having a special on Bon Vivant vichyssoise today, Mrs. Smith."

To Senator Edmund Muskie: "Why don't you level with them and tell them you don't think it's possible a black could become vice president of the United States?"

To Capt. Aubrey Daniel III, prosecutor in the Lieutenant Calley case: "I'm sorry, captain. The President is too busy to talk to you. Why don't you write him a letter?"

To George Meany: "Forget it, George. The President wouldn't dare show up at an AFL-CIO convention in Miami."

To Aristotle Onassis: "The marriage contract is in a safe place where no one can find it."

To the president of the Rand Corp.: "Are you kidding? Daniel Ellsberg is the most discreet person who ever worked here."

To Secretary of Defense Laird: "CBS wants to do a documentary on the Pentagon, and I OKed it because I think it will help our image."

To Mayor John Lindsay: "How can the Knapp Commission investigation of the New York police hurt you?"

To Ambassador Goerge Bush in the United Nations: "Don't worry, Mr. Ambassador. You can tell the President we have the votes to keep Taiwan in the United Nations."

To the American people: "There will never be wage-and-price controls as long as I'm President of the United States."

Love and war live side by side in the history of man. A world of sad and often cruel contrasts. We ask "Why?"
Why poverty in a land of plenty? Why alienation when we are all born to the same family of man? The aching chasm between the real and the ideal everywhere
provokes the question . . .

WHY?

In a world looking for answers maybe God is the place to start.
God is hope. God is now.

In 1944, in World War II, the long, costly battle for Cassino began in Italy.

In 1949, the first election was held in the new state of Israel.

Ten years ago: President John F. Kennedy asked Congress for a trade expansion act which would give the president authority to reduce tariffs by as much as 50 per cent.

Five years ago: Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced that American servicemen would be sent to the Vietnam war zone at a much lower rate during the year. One year ago: A jury in Los Angeles found Charles Manson and three women codefendants guilty of the murder of seven persons, including actress Sharon Tate.
